Conscription Bill Becomes Law As FDR Signs

With a flourish of his pen, President Roosevelt makes the much-debated Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill an actual law. Present at the historic signing, which took place in the White House cabinet room, are, left to right, Secretary of War Henry Stimson, Representative A. J. May, Army Chief of Staff George Marshall and Senator M. Sheppard, chairman of the military affairs committee. After affixing his signature the president issued a proclamation requiring all eligible males to register on Oct 16.

Sixteen Million Young Americans Face Draft

Roosevelt Signs Order For All Men Between 21 and 35 to Register Oct. 16 in Peace Conscription

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—In "the factories and fields, the cities and towns," 16,500,000 young Americans, 21 through 35 years old, got their orders from President Roosevelt today to register Oct. 16 for possible service in a great new citizen army.

With the quick strokes of a couple of cheap, scratchy pens, the chief executive signed the nation's first peacetime conscription bill at 3.08 p. m. (EST) yesterday.

Then, laying the history-making law aside, he put his name to a proclamation which said this marshalling of military strength was "to fend off war from our shores," to avoid "the terrible fate of nations whose weakness invited attack."

This new call to arms came as 60,000 National Guardsmen were donning uniforms for a year's active duty and the war department announced 35,000 more would join the colors on Oct. 15, the day before conscription registration.

The draftees, also to be called up for a year, will receive their training with some 240,000 guardsmen, who will be mustered into federal service by Jan. 1, and with the regular army, now recruiting toward a strength of 375,000.

Only the issuance of a presidential executive order, expected within the next few days, was left on the list of things to be done before the draft machinery—officially—is set in motion.

County To Have Three Draft Offices To Register 10,500

As plans for procedure in registering, classifying and inducting Ohio's draftees into the army were being made in Columbus today, announcement was made that Richland county will have three registration offices, all in Mansfield. Location of the offices has not been decided upon.

The three offices in Mansfield will be set up as follows: one office for registrants in wards 1, 2, 3 and 4; a second office for wards 5 and 6, and Madison township outside the city; and a third office for the remainder of the county.

According to government estimates, about 5,320 Mansfielders will be required to register, and of that number about 130 will be called in the first draft. Federal figures show that men of draft age constitute about 14 per cent of the country's population, and that one man in every 40 of draft age will be called for service the first year.

In Richland county, including Mansfield, about 10,500 will register and about 262 called up for service.

Registration hours will be between 7 a. m. and 9 p. m. Here, in broad outline and free of most technicalities, is the tentative step-by-step plan of the draft from the

Mansfield Guardsmen Set To Mobilize For Year's Training

Men and officers of Battery D, 134th F. A., of the Ohio National Guard, were making preparations today to leave their homes and jobs for one year in answer to the president's call for mobilization of the Ohio guard on Oct. 15.

Major Coleman B. Todd, executive officer of the Second battalion, said today that while Battery D had not received its official orders directly, the unit was acting on orders which the Ohio National Guard headquarters in Columbus had received from the war department.

The order will affect 8,500 guardsmen in the state, and 89 men and four officers in Mansfield.

The men will mobilize at the Mansfield armory Oct. 15. Major Todd said it was likely that they would be held here for several days before reporting to some designated concentration point for routine examinations. The Ohio guard, he said, will be sent to Fort Shelby, near Hattiesburg, Miss., for its year of training.

Capt. R. J. Nichols, commanding officer of the Battery, said today that he would lose not more than 20 of his men and probably less under the exemption clause pro

MAYOR HITS 'PRESSURE' IN MAKING MOVE

Claims 'Nearly Everybody Was Approached' While Study of Bids Was Underway.

SEES BETTER BARGAIN

Claims City Will Receive More Suitable Proposals at New Letting.

Mayor William J. Locké this morning ordered the rejection of bids submitted by seven firms for leasing to the city 500 parking meters for nine months.

The action came as a surprise after the mayor and the service director had studied the proposals for more than three weeks. Bids were opened Aug. 26.

The mayor indicated that pressure groups had been at work urging selection of different types of meters for the city.

"There have been stories of all kinds of 'offers' floating around. There have been charges by one person and another and everybody seems to have been approached on the selection," he added.

Locke said all bids had been rejected and that the city would call for new proposals tomorrow, delaying approximately three weeks, any possible installation of the meters.

"I have reason to believe that by calling for new proposals on the machines, that the city will be able to obtain a better proposition," he declared.

He said he had reached the decision after a conference this morning with Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton who had been authorized by council to enter into a contract for leasing the machines for a nine-month trial period.

"It will mean a delay but under the circumstances we both feel that we are justified in calling for new bids," he added.

Crafton could not be reached for a statement.

Seven firms submitted bids on the meters, two quoting prices on automatic machines and five proposals on manually operated devices. The prices ranged from $33 to $65 per meter.

WILLKIE DRAWS HUGE CROWDS

Applause Greets Candidate Using New Technique In Oklahoma.

(By International News Service)

ABOARD WILLKIE TRAIN, En Route Amarillo, Texas—Following a hugely successful appearance in Democratic Oklahoma, Wendell Willkie headed for Amarillo, Texas, today to discuss the third term as a major issue in the 1940 campaign.

Willkie last night drew a surprisingly big and enthusiastic crowd in Tulsa — normally a Democratic city—when he stopped there for 30 minutes to deliver an extemporaneous speech.

An estimated 30,000 to 50,000 persons crowded the state fair grounds and at least 10,000 more lined the road on the five mile route.

The crowd not only was large but was even more responsive than the audience which earlier in the day heard Willkie deliver a prepared major speech at Coffeyville, Kansas, predicting dictatorship for the United States if President Roosevelt was given a third term.

All along the route in Tulsa the applause was continuous and many sentences Willkie spoke at the fair grounds were applauded.

Today the candidate heads into Texas where, he has been told, sentiment is particularly strong on the third term issue.

Anonymous Threat Says Arms Plant Will Be Blown Up

BRIDGEPORT, Conn.—(AP)—State police disclosed that an anonymous message had been received by Brooklyn authorities, warning that the Remington Arms company's munitions plant here would be "blown up" today.

Lieut. Willard E. Bushy, commanding officer of the Bridgeport state police barracks, said the threat had been relayed to him by 71st police precinct at Brooklyn. The message said an anonymous call had been received at the precinct and that the information was relayed to Connecticut authorities for action.

The warning was passed on to the Arms company officials, who declined comment.

Remington is one of the country's largest manufacturers of rifle and machine gun cartridges.

DR. MERZ QUITS

Assistant Mansfield Health Chief Resigns Post.

Dr. Walter L. Merz, assistant city-county health commissioner, has resigned his position to engage in private practice.

The resignation was submitted to Dr Roy C. Rehder, commissioner, upon his return from Milwaukee, Wis., yesterday. It becomes effective Sept. 23. Dr. Rehder said he hoped to have a successor named by Oct. 1.

Dr. Merz said he was resigning to enter private practice at Chesaning, Mich., 20 miles southwest of Saginaw. He expects to take over his practice Oct. 1.

A graduate of the University of Michigan, Dr. Merz came to Mansfield from Hamtramck, Mich., in September, 1938. He succeeded Dr. Paul Baird, who resigned to accept a government position.

Odd Plane, Truck Accidents

A mechanical defect was blamed today for wrecking the truck shown in the top photo. Joseph L. Sendelbach, R. D. 1, Bloomville, said a spindle on the front wheel broke and he lost control of the vehicle. It tore down 47 feet of guard rail and plunged into a creek bed on route 97 two miles east of Bellville yesterday afternoon. Below is the damaged plane of Dr. Burr M. Hathaway, General hospital pathologist, after he made a forced landing in a cornfield on the Martin Toby farm, six miles north of Mansfield yesterday afternoon. The motor of the ship stalled.

3 Have Brush With Death In Plane, Truck, Cycle Accidents

An airplane pilot, a motorcycle officer and a truck driver had close brushes with death yesterday, all three crawling from their machines unscathed after being involved in accidents.

Dr. Burr M. Hathaway, pathologist at General hospital, Patrolman William M. Colby of the Mansfield police department, and Joseph L. Sendelbach, R. D. 1, Bloomville, a truck driver, all were congratulating themselves on their lucky escapes today.

Making a forced landing in a corn field about six miles north of Mansfield yesterday afternoon when the motor of his plane stalled, Dr. Hathaway crawled from the ship and hitch-hiked his way back to the municipal airport.

He was flying above a wooded section when the motor stalled. He was unable to glide the plane to a cleared field, but picked out the cornfield. The ship settled amidst the forage ripping loose the landing gear as it struck ground.

James R. Harrington, airport manager, and CAA inspector for this district, said the plane skidded less than 30 feet in landing.

He said that Dr. Hathaway had been practicing stalls in preparation for a license re-rating in the plane he had purchased a part interest only two weeks ago. Dr. L. D. Bonar is co-owner.

Harrington said the motor quit, forcing Dr. Hathaway to make a "dead stick" landing, not uncommon among pilots.

In an accident about 9 p. m. yesterday, Patrolman Colby escaped with scratches and bruises when a speeder he was chasing made a left turn in front of his motorcycle.

The accident occurred at West Third and Mulberry street following a 50 to 70 mile an hour chase over west side streets.

As the result of the crash which damaged the motorcycle

Senate Leaders Expect Excess Profits Bill to Carry.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Senate leaders said today that a developing controversy over a proposal to tax governmental securities appeared to be the only major barrier to approval of an excess profits tax bill, carrying with it a 3.1 per cent increase in corporation income taxes.

They forecast, however, that there would be sufficient votes from a bi-partisan group of opponents to defeat the proposal and make possible passage of the tax bill by Thursday evening.

A recess because of the death of Speaker Bankhead deferred until Wednesday further debate on the measure.

Miller Reviews 5 Years Of Work In Mansfield Schools

By VIRGIL A. STANFIELD

Marking the beginning of his sixth year as head of Mansfield public schools, Supt. W. L. Miller last night reviewed for the board of education an impressive expansion program for the city schools during his five years here and thanked the board for its co-operation in making the improvements possible. He headed his report "Five Short Years."

"The business-like way in which the board has carried on its deliberations, the earnestness and sincerity with which every problem has been approached, the willing desire to undertake what seemed at times unsurmountable tasks, and the personal sacrifice of time and effort which members have willingly made have been evident at all times in the deliberations of the group," Miller said.

In suggesting a program for the future, the superintendent asserted that "of vital importance are the housing facilities of the elementary grades and the board must turn its attention to these requirements soon. A constantly shifting population with new areas for home building which are opening up mean increased demands for school buildings. Equipment and facilities for a better type of instruction must be continually improved."

Miller pointed out that despite a $750,000 bond issue to help it

'Big Berthas' Hurl Shells At British Capital

Nazis Claim Use of Super-Cannon As Storms, Fog Block Attempt At Invasion; Air Raids Continue at Intervals

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN—Germany's long-distance guns on the French channel coast have begun to shell London, informed German sources disclosed tonight.

The guns which have gone into action against London are super-cannon hitherto unused, these sources said, and even now their firing is more or less limited to range-finding. Their use, however, is expected to increase daily.

(It is roughly 90 miles from the German occupied French coast to London.)

The strictest secrecy prevails concernings the caliber of the guns. Informed sources, however, said that certain "big berthas" during the World war would fire 75 miles (one was used against Paris). Since then, they added, science has made great strides and the somewhat longer distance from Calais to London is "no problem."

From newsreel pictures which have been shown in the reich it appears that these new guns have barrels resembling a telescope.

That is, each section is slightly thinner than the preceding one but the sections are connected by strong buttresses.

The newsreel pictures indicate these barrels actually sway in the air after a shot has been fired.

Meanwhile, DNB, the official news agency, said a "rolling" German air attack against London is continuing amidst rain and storm.

Authorized sources said heavy blows in the last 24 hours had been delivered against the British capital's traffic junctions and subway stations, and that the striking power of the Royal Air Force had been blunted.

Many of London's traffic arrangements were demoralized by the "most effective" attacks on vital points within the past 24 hours, authorized sources asserted, while the high command declared British planes had not even attempted to attack German territory last night.

German circles interpreted this lack of British attacks as a sign of a weakening of British air reserves, which now must be held in readiness to counter German attacks.

Moreover, British raids on the German-held coasts of France, Belgium and Holland could be counted on the fingers of one hand, authorized sources said.

Besides setting huge fires with bombs of all calibers in many parts of industrial London, authoritative sources said, the German air force has drastically interfered with production at the Armstrong arms factory in Birmingham, and forced suspension of production at the Rolls Royce plant where "5,000 motorcycles" were destroyed.

The high command said docks and industrial targets at Liverpool were laid waste with showers of bombs, and similar objectives at the Yorkshire port of Whitby were hit.

Several British merchant ships were hit by a shelling of the Dover area yesterday, the high command said.

Informed sources described the raids on London yesterday and last night as the heaviest of the war, and the accompanying air battles with huge concentrations of British fighter craft as perhaps the greatest of the war.

But the high command said only four British planes were downed in these fights, and only three German warplanes failed to come back.

Meanwhile, authorized sources

INVASION: Churchill Says Germans Prepare Steadily

LONDON—Winston Churchill disclosed to the house of commons today that the Germans are continuing "steadily" to deploy barges and ships in preparation for an invasion of the British Isles and warned: "We must expect that he will make the attempt at what he judges to be the best opportunity."

He referred, of course, to Adolf Hitler.

Churchill spoke before an assemblage of commons which began at 2:45 p. m. (8:45 a. m. EST), but the fact that it was in session was kept secret for more than two hours, because of repeated air raids over London.

The great stained glass windows of the house had been removed and plain glass substituted.

The house adjourned shortly after it had assembled when the sirens sounded the third alarm since dawn at 2:53 p. m., (8:53 a. m. EST), but reassembled before the all-clear blew.

The prime minister's statement, his first to commons in nearly two weeks, ranged from a capitulation of air raid casualties at home to a terse announcement that "sharp fighting" was taking place between the armored vehicles of British forces in western Egypt and those of the Italian invader.

Disclosing that 2,000 persons had been killed and about 8,000 wounded in the first half of September in air raids on Britain, Churchill asserted this bombardment was carried out with the "silly" idea that it would force the British government to make peace.

He added: "We can await the decision of this prolonged air battle with sober and increasing confidence."

That, he asserted, was because the Royal Air Force has done serious damage to the German invasion preparations on the other side of the English channel and because British strength is developing steadily by air, land and sea.

"We are only now beginning to get the increased flow of production from the great programs started at the outbreak of the war," he said.

ATTACK: French Planes Lash Italians In Coastal Area

(By International News Service)

ROME—Attacks by French war planes based in Morocco against German forces in occupied France and Italian troops in the Mediterranean area were disclosed today as Premier Mussolini's colonial troops swept along the Egyptian coast toward Alexandria, occupying the strategic base at Sidi Barrani.

From an authoritative source, this correspondent learned that the French squadron has carried out ten separate raids already. The war planes were to have been turned over to Germany and Italy under the armistice terms, but the pilots elected to continue the fight for Britain.

Concern over the situation in French Morocco was said to explain stiffening of the Rome-Berlin axis attitude toward the Vichy government of France, as well as the visit of Spanish minister of the interior Ramon Serrano Suner to Berlin.

Meanwhile, as Italian mo-

Much to Learn for Wedded Bliss

A girl of my acquaintance who expects to be married in the late autumn has written me an amusing letter, saying: "Since you're no great hand at getting married yourself, perhaps you can tell me how to be happy though married."

A prime first aid to happy marriage is not to make your husband over. Learn to take him, as they say in auction rooms and curio shops, "as is."

Remember that his hobbies are very special pets and, pursuing hobbies at home, he'll be less interested in acquiring extra-matrimonial pets outside. Even if they're messy hobbies, such as doing carpentry work around the house, and even knowing that you'll have to get in a professional carpenter to repair the damage, remember that dad is getting a mighty kick out of these things, and he's entitled to it once in a while.

A word of advice to all girls about to enter into the "holy state" is never to marry because you're tired of supporting yourself and you'd like to shift that responsibility to a pair of broader shoulders. Remember what those splendid old high priestesses of woman suffrage, Susan B. Anthony, Elizabeth Cady Stanton and others, warned a generation ago: that marriage no longer furnishes economic security for women.

No matter how bright your prospects are when you start out, in these days of economic upheavals you may have to bring home the bacon before you're many years older. Unless you happen to belong to that "going going, gone" millionaire class, it's just as well for every girl to take some sort of training for the rainy day or not to lose touch with her old job completely when she marries.

If there are children to be looked after, there will probably be years that a good wife and mother will be entirely occupied in caring for them. After the youngsters are in school and on their own, it's a mighty heartening thing for a wife to know that she has the ability to turn a penny. She's singularly fortunate at the present day to be able to take the necessary vocational training which makes earning money possible. Thank your Uncle Sam for that.

Please don't expect marriage to be a "flirtation under the auspices of the church," as a certain writer friend of mine referred to it. In the best of marriages, there are unavoidable heartbreaks—sickness, deaths, money losses, disappointments, frustrated hopes, all sorts of misfortunes which must be faced. Good, honest companionship, respect, knowledge of troubles lived through together are the things which make marriage worth while.

There are no soft snaps in this world, not even in marriage, and to make marriage successful you've got to put the same amount of thought, will-power, give-and-take, good humor into the old institution that you would have to put into any other going business.

And firstly, lastly, and at all times, please don't marry for any other reason except that you're so head-over-heels in love with your man that you can't possibly live without him.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Yes, I am very sure," I answered firmly, silently asking forgiveness for the falsehood as I spoke.

"Indeed," I added, feeling that I might as well have the sheep's fate as the lamb's, "he would have been here before now, if it had not been for my father's commission."

"Thank you, Madge," she said "It helps me to think that, anyway."

The look in her eyes again made me glad of the prevarication, but the next second brought renewed perplexity to me as she turned her eyes to Miss Whitlock.

"I'd like to speak to Madge alone," she said courteously, but with definite purpose in her voice. "Do you mind?"

I was ashamed at the sudden chilling of blood in my veins. The warning of Lillian and Katherine that I must not permit myself to be alone with Edith rang in my ears. They had visioned an attempt by her to take me along with her in the suicidal journey Miss Whitlock was sure she was planning. Yet it seemed unbelievable that so frail and emaciated a figure could do any harm to me.

Common sense banished my fright. One thing was certain. She would do nothing, attempt nothing until she had seen Dicky. That was her sole goal. I looked toward Miss Whitlock in an appeal for permission to grant Edith's request.

"Not just now," she said, and went steadily on even when Edith wailed, "Why? Why?" again.

"Perhaps a little later," she promised. "You see we haven't told you yet, but you and I are going to move downstairs for the night at least."

She turned to me with a quick question.

"You are almost ready, aren't you?" she asked.

"Completely," I said, and Edith's eyes mirrored fright.

"Where are you taking me, and why?" she asked wildly.

"Father thinks there may be danger of fire when Jack Leslie and his gang attack us," I said. "Therefore he wishes all the women and children to sleep downstairs at night, so that they can get out in a hurry if necessary."

I had expected fear as the reaction to my news, but I had not foreseen the stark panic which flashed into her eyes.

"But," she stammered, "that means it will be like a barracks or a dormitory—won't it? I shall have to be in with all the rest—all those eyes, looking at me, wondering, speculating."

Her voice trailed off into silence, and once more she covered her eyes with her hands as if by the gesture she could shut out the picture her imagination was painting.

I looked at Miss Whitlock, and she answered the look by writing a message upon a scrap of paper and passing it to me.

"You understand her better than I. Deal with her as you think best," the message read.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Lucille Ball ought to be the White Light of Hope to all the B-submerged pretties around town. . . . A couple of years ago, after working herself no higher than a standstill, Lucille took a step up in the "Annabella" series, looked to be on the highroad at last, but nothing happened. She was indigo but game. . . . Kept on performing her B chores dutifully, kept on trying to bring the attention of directors in her direction for parts she knew she could do if they'd let her try. . . . When she got one, she was extra-good. . . . And then came that picture called "Dance, Girl, Dance," with Lucille playing a burlesque queen against Maureen O'Hara's ballet dancer. . . . She made the boys sit up and cheer, among them Harold Lloyd—who has cast her now as the lead in "Three Girls and a Gob."

"Dance, Girl, Dance," nice as it is for Lucille, is even a sweeter picture for its director, Dorothy Arzner, who is still the only woman picture-guider in town. . . Miss Arzner was unfortunate enough, a couple of years ago, to draw a number called "The Bride Wore Red." . . . The picture almost ruined Joan Crawford, and it was the last Arzner job until "Dance, Girl, Dance" came along to restore her career.

"One Sunday Afternoon," the stage play that served Gary Cooper as an earlier talkie, is James Carney's now. . . . They're changing the setting from a small town to New York—but the period is still the Gay Nineties. . . . Martha Scott, riding the predicted crest, goes into "Three Cheers for Miss Bishop," the college yarn, but don't worry, they're not making the Great Scott a campus cutie. Miss Bishop is a teacher.

I still can't forget the excitement of those windmill scenes in "Foreign Correspondent"—or think of any picture which so completely recaptures the thrill of the old cliff-hanging serials.

Maybe Hitchcock is out to make the movies really MOVE again. . . . Ann Todd, the Temple-heiress presumptive, is going into "Lady Jane," which was purchased originally for Shirley.

Pat O'Brien (now in "Passage West" with Constance Bennett) may be thinking about a stage play, but I don't believe the Broadway itch is keeping him up nights. Pat's gratitude to the movies is best expressed by his, "Who ever heard of an actor owning a chunk of a race track?"

Times are easier, even booming, for the Boy who Doesn't Get Girl. . . . Once upon a time the manly stars were skeptical of scripts in which they had no final clinch with the Gal. Feared audiences would think they couldn't have won the lady if they'd wanted to. Nowadays the loser is the winner. Bob Preston lives in the movies only when he loses the girl. If he gets her, he gets bumped off—except in "Typhoon"—but he goes along getting his weekly checks. Bob loses D. Lamour to Preston Foster in "Moon Over Bermuda," and Foster is the winner when Gary Cooper loses Madeleine Carroll in "Northwest Mounted Police."

But movie stars ought to have known the advantage of fading out alone a long time ago. For everybody knows Sydney Carton and, by the way, what was the name of that guy in "A Tale of Two Cities" who got the girl Sydney Carton lost? . . .

Don't Force Pre-School Age Child

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Some bright babies who spend practically all their time with their parents (rarely with other little children) begin talking relatively late. With a sign language of his own so well obeyed by the parents, the youngster may have very little need of conventional speech.

"Dear Dr. Myers—My boy is a little past two years old. He has just started to talk, everyone tells me he should have been able to talk long before this; he says such words as mamma, dad, light and almost all food names.

Don't Force Him.

"When our boy has been around other children he learns to say things they do, for example, my nephew has only to ask my boy to say a word once and he'll remember that word forever, whereas I may repeat a word every day for a week and he does not repeat it of his own will.

"Could you advise me how I can speed up his talking. Or should I just go along, try to help him and he will soon be talking my leg off. A stamped, addressed envelope is enclosed."

My reply: "I have no doubt your child will soon be 'talking your leg off,' if you quit urging him, especially if he spends more time with other children. It is very significant that he remembers and repeats words he hears your nephew say. The nephew has no anxiety about your baby's talking; you have, and inevitably betray this emotion. Your very eagerness to have your baby talk hampers his speed development.

"Try to expose your baby to more children and read to him you and Dad every day. I can think of no better contribution to your baby's speech now and in the future than frequent reading to him. I am enclosing a set of books for this purpose. Begin on one with a picture on every page and very little reading on this page like Johnny Crow's Garden. He will hear what you read about the picture while he looks at it."

A Father Writes for Book Lists.

A reporter on a paper which carries this column writes:

"My dear Dr. Myers:—Since two children have come to our home, your column has become a favorite with both myself and my wife. It has answered many questions and also has enabled us to meet problems and handle many of them successfully.

"I am enclosing a 3c stamp and would appreciate your list of books on personality and mental health and what to read to the child from two to six. Also I would appreciate your prayers for children."

It was a pleasure to send these lists to him. So it will be to send any or all of them to others who will write me at 235 E. 45th St., New York City, N. Y., enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

ORDER OF THE TRICKS

It is easy enough to review the order in which the tricks were taken—after the hand is over. That is a mere matter of memory. But to "review them in advance," as it were—forecast their order if you play one way, and their different order if you play another way—that is harder, but is worth points to you on the score sheet. Applying just that process can sometimes mean the difference between end-playing your opponent and having him end-play you for the crucial trick.

The bidding went that way at two tables of a duplicate tournament, while at others North and South ultimately reached diamond and club contracts. The No Trumpers had the most difficult kind of hand to play—a misfit. Both tried the same method of play, one making it and one being thwarted by East.

At both tables the play began with the spade 4 to the Q and A, the diamond Q overtaken in dummy, followed by three more diamonds, West winning the last one and returning his spade 3. Where East took this with the K, the contract was made. Of course unwilling to lead a spade to the dummy, he had to choose a heart or club. He picked the heart K, South scored his A and Q and threw East in with another heart. East cashed his club A for the fourth trick of his side, but the club return gave South the rest of the tricks in that suit.

At the other table, after the first spade and four diamond tricks, when West returned his spade 3, East let South win with the J. South then had to lead to him. He picked the wrong suit, hearts. His 3 to the 10 and J were followed by the spade K, heart K to the A, the heart Q, then a club, East getting two clubs to set the contract. When South was in with the spade J, a club to the 10 would have put the shoe on the other foot. East could not then have stopped game. It is interesting to figure that out for yourself.

With the spade 6 led against South's 4-Spades, why should declarer take the first trick in dummy, instead of his own hand?

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, Sept. 18.

Excellent progress and gratification in any number of vocations or avocations may be found among this day's planetary prospects. It will be a very lively and ambitious day, with hard work, application and good judgment brought to bear on a variety of objectives—business, artistic, musical or literary, while many creative talents are under fine impetus. The social, domestic and sentimental satisfactions are also quickened; but be not carried away by impetuosity or moved by petty bickerings. Create, be original.

Those whose birthday it is are under excellent promise for using a variety of talents in a highly creative and gratifying manner. In art, music, literature, in spiritual aspiration or more sordid inventive ambition, there is much planetary promise for development. The emotions and sentiments play their part in unfolding talents and in bringing pleasure. Business also thrives, but in all directions be not subject to impetuosity or strife.

A child born on this day may be talented and versatile, with splendid creative urges waiting development and expression. Its business sense and ambitions will not be lacking, but the cultural and emotional may dominate.

PLAIN-BACKED GLOVES

The first time you see a pair of leather gloves without the usual "points" ("points" are those tuck-effects which run up the center of the back), the plain expanse of leather may be quite a shock to you. Probably you'll wonder, too, if the absence of the points won't make your hands look larger. The answer to that is . . . it won't particularly, and even if it did, who'd care, because the "pointless" glove looks so new and smart. It's an idea quite a few American leather glove designers are playing with, so you won't have any trouble finding some to try on and see how they look on your own hands.

Saga of Oil Fields.

"Boom Town," roaring, rowdy saga of Boom Towns from Texas to the Tropics, showing at the Ohio, offers Clark Gable another of the two-fisted, fast-action roles which has made him a popular star. It is a story of two men who form a partnership. They remain friends through adversity, even when one marries the sweetheart of the other. Claudette Colbert, Spencer Tracy and Hedy Lamarr are co-starred with Gable.

Family Loyalty.

Presenting a vivid picture of a girl's loyalty and her sacrifice for her shell-shocked father, "A Bill of Divorcement," showing at the Park, features a brilliant cast headed by Maureen O'Hara, Adolphe Menjou, Fay Bainter, Herbert Marshall and C. Aubrey Smith. The second attraction is "Irene," taken from the famous musical comedy of that title, and stars Ray Milland and Anna Neagle.

Oberon and Brent.

"'Til We Meet Again," which comes to the Ritz Wednesday co-stars Merle Oberon and George Brent in a romantic and human drama. ORDAINED AS DEACON. ELDERS

Three in Mansfield Area at Methodist Ceremonies In Delaware.

Two Methodist church elders and a deacon had been ordained today in the Mansfield area by Bishop H. Lester Smith of Cincinnati.

Ordination ceremonies were conducted at the northeast Ohio Methodist conference in session at Delaware.

Ordained elders were Eugene Thompson, Ontario, and Wilbur B. Meizer, Leesville. Lloyd W. Babb was elevated to a deacon's post at Chesterville.

H. W. Courtney, Cambridge, in a report for the district superintendents, told the conference that church colleges "are on trial for their very existence."

He urged increased support for the colleges, a number of which were said to be in serious financial condition.

Courtney reported that church attendance gained during the past year and an increase of 17 young people's camps had been recorded in the last 15 years.

The conference will close today with the approval of a resolution opposing war and the reading of pastoral assignments. Conference officials said pastors will be appointed only for 10 months this time, since the 1941 conference will be held in June.

In 1939, 8,550 newspapers with a total circulation of 37,500,000 appeared in the Soviet Union.

$678,628 Budget Approved to Operate City Schools

FUND $1,250 LOWER THAN 1940 FIGURE

Board's Request Reduced By $36,693; Bond Fund To Include $119,485.

Mansfield schools will have $678,628 for operation costs and bond retirement in 1941, or $1,250 less than they had this year.

The board of education approved a budget providing that amount last night, accepting the county budget commission's reduction of $36,693 from the amount the board asked for 1941.

The revised budget, which was returned to the board by the budget commission, sets up $559,143 for actual operation and $119,485 for retiring bonds during the year. A total of $715,321 had been requested.

The board's request for operating funds was slashed approximately $45,000, but the budget commission allowed $8,300 more for bonds than the board requested, making the actual reduction $36,693.

John H. Eisaman, clerk of the board, said the slight reduction from last year's operating figure would not handicap the schools since they are operating within their appropriation this year without much trouble.

Supt. of Schools W. L. Miller said the fact that budgets had not received final approval of the county in time to permit the drawing up of the school appropriation until spring in recent years had caused some confusion in setting up proper amounts for all purposes and he hoped the board could prepare its financial program in January next year.

In recent years, a temporary appropriation covering a three or four-month period has been used by the board until an appropriation for the entire year could be prepared and approved.

Davey, Bricker Trade Hot Campaign Blasts

EX-GOVERNOR SAYS OPPONENT 'PREVARICATED'

'Legal Graft' Cited in Reply to Assertions In Talk At Cleveland.

COLUMBUS — Ohio's gubernatorial nominees, incumbent Republican John W. Bricker and Democrat Martin L. Davey, sparred with each other over state-wide radio networks last night.

Davey, speaking first in a broadcast originating in Cleveland, accused the governor of "prevarication" in an assertion that the Davey administration put Ohio public schools $18,000,000 in debt.

The former governor seeking a third term declared that his administration left $6,500,000 in the treasury to be used against the school debt but that Bricker transferred it to the general revenue fund.

Bricker charged that Davey failed to cooperate with the state legislature during his tenure of office and that he falsified state budgets by an increase of $15,000,000 more than requirements so that he might "falsely claim credit" by vetoing millions in appropriations.

Bricker quoted from the report of a senate committee which investigated the Davey administration and added that "no such investigation ever will be necessary in this administration."

The governor said he was saving the state $1,000,000 annually in state purchases by establishing a competitive bidding system.

"Legal graft which became so infamous during the previous administration (Davey's) is now illegal in Ohio," Bricker said.

Davey attacked Bricker's claims of having inherited a state deficit in 1939.

"We left him an unencumbered cash balance of $3,000,000 in the general revenue fund," he said.

Davey prefaced his speech with the assertion that he entered politics as a hobby and that he owned a thriving business which could give him a better living than the governorship.

Politics with "the present governor is a meal ticket, with me an avocation," he said.

Earlier, in a meeting with Democratic candidates for the Ohio legislature Davey sought support for his proposed repeal of the state sales tax.

CHEERFUL

Knox Believes England Will Defeat Germany.

SAN DIEGO—(AP)—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox gives England a better than even chance to defeat Germany. He says he is "quite cheerful about it."

The secretary, who arrived here by navy plane yesterday from Honolulu where he inspected naval facilities and spent five days at sea with the fleet, told newsmen he believed the chance for a successful invasion of Britain was growing weaker every day.

The secretary said the recent fleet maneuvers off Hawaii demonstrated that the fleet "is the best fleet in the world." He described the vessels as in "excellent condition" and the navy's air arm as "very capable."

ADMITS GUILT

Toledoan Awaits Sentence In Killing of Athlete.

TOLEDO (NS. James Craig Watson, 33, negro, awaited sentence today after pleading guilty to a charge of second degree murder in the shooting of Henry Giles, negro athlete of the University of Toledo, last June 4.

Police said the shooting resulted from jealousy over Miss Frances Alexander, whom Giles was with when he was shot.

IT'S DUTY

COLUMBUS (AP)—The secretary of state's office said today it expected election officials—and everyone else to serve without pay when registering men for the draft Oct. 16. Furthermore, owners of registration places are expected to donate the quarters as a "patriotic duty."

Up and Down the Street

Robert Hock, one of the students enrolled in the Civil Aeronautics Authority's civilian pilot training ground school at Senior high school, was taking no chances when he buckled down to the final examination last night. He had a "good luck" charm on his desk and smoked a big black cigar during the written tests.

C. I. Kimmel, county conservation officer, was puzzling today over a letter he received from Washington, D. C., yesterday. The letter, written by a person Kimmel had never heard of, pleaded with him to buy a merry-go-round for a paltry $2,800. The writer said that he had purchased the contraption last year at the cost of $13,000 and that it was a real buy at the price. Kimmel said today that he couldn't figure out what a game warden would do with a merry-go-round, but it sounded like a good idea, at that.

It isn't unusual for Charles Ward, 67½ South Main street, to raise "out size" vegetables, because his hobby is developing exceptionally large specimens, but a winter radish which is on display in the lobby of the court house is something. It weighs three and a half pounds, measures 12 inches long and is 12 inches around. So far no one has had the courage to sample its quality.

RECEIVES FUND

Auditor Gets $8,911 From State In Sales Tax.

County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe had received a check for $8,911 from the state today as the county's share of sales tax collections in August.

The money will be used for local government operating expenses but it will not be distributed until next month's allocation is received, it was said.

Deputy Auditor Arthur S. Beck pointed out that allocations to subdivisions are made every three months, or after enough money has accumulated to make a distribution worth while.

HURRICANE HITS CANADIAN COAST

Wires Reported Down East of Quebec as Gales Sweep Across Nova Scotia.

MONTREAL — (U.P.) — A severe storm raged across Canada's maritime provinces early today, striking hard at the vital war port of Halifax, Nova Scotia, starting point of convoys to Great Britain.

Winds of 70 miles an hour were reported in the center of the storm, which swept a path 200 miles wide across Nova Scotia, Prince Edward island and eastern New Brunswick. Damage was reported heavy but with communications lines down over most of the area and the wartime censorship in force, details were meager.

The storm was of the nature of a hurricane and was of tropical origin.

All wires of the Canadian National Telegraph company were down east of the city of Quebec. It was reported that there were some casualties at Saint John.

Maine's northern coast felt the backlash of the hurricane. Wind velocity rose as high as 70 miles an hour inland, small vessels were driven ashore and power lines were broken at Eastport and Houlton.

Saint John, N. B., was hard hit. Several persons were injured by flying debris.

At Moncton, N. B., the storm, accompanied by blinding torrents of rain, roared through the town all night at a velocity varying from 60 to 80 miles an hour.

Details of damage and injury were meager because of broken communication lines, but it was estimated that 25 per cent of the apple crop in Nova Scotia's rich Annapolis valley was ruined.

SCHOOL BOARD TO CONTINUE DEFENSE PROGRAM TRAINING

Continuation of the national defense program training at Mansfield Senior high school and the opening of 11 new machine shop and theory courses on Sept. 23 was authorized last night by the board of education at its monthly session.

Financed by the federal government, the classes are conducted in the Senior high shop department after regular high school classes have been dismissed.

Courses approved for the new term opening late this month include machine shop practice, auto mechanics shop practice, electric shop practice, blue print reading and drawing, gas and electric welding practice, and theory courses in the machine shop, electric shop, automotive shop, gas and electric welding, interior decorating, blue print reading and shop mechanics.

Classes will be open to men who are not employed on a schedule calling for six hours per day five days a week for 10 weeks for a total of 300 hours credit. Approximately 240 men received eight weeks of training in the courses during the summer.

Supt. of Schools W. L. Miller told the board that about 25 per cent of the men who took the courses, not including WPA workers, have found work. The average cost per man for the training is less than $30, he said.

Applications for enrollment in the classes will be handled at the Ohio State Employment office, 50 North Diamond street. A fee of $2 is charged for the course in theory for men who are already employed and want to get further instruction in the evenings.

BOARD HIRES 8

Teachers, Cafeteria Employes Named for Schools.

Two Junior high school teachers and six cafeteria employes were hired last night by the Mansfield board of education to fill vacancies caused by resignations and the shifting of staff members.

The board employed Miss Edna Tucker, Columbus, to teach home economics at Johnny Appleseed Junior high school and George Tuttle, Findlay, as an instructor at John Simpson Junior high.

Employed for cafeteria work were Miss Dorothy Swendal and Mrs. Virginia Leach, secretaries; Marie Short, Mrs. Josephine Beer, Jean Gilbert, and L. E. Heller, helpers. All six are Mansfielders.

The board voted to send letters of appreciation to members of the building maintenance staff for their work in keeping the schools in condition during the summer and putting them in good shape for the opening of school.

Laff-a-Day

"I not only invite you to my birthday party, Reggie, but I DARE you to come!"

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Miss Midnight's Diary.

Dear Diary: Well, it's off.

I refer, of course, to the season.

The season came in with a bang this week—with verve and hilarity and plenty of ermine and quite a dash of oomph. There were tables on the dance floors again and cover charges on the tables, and new voices chanting behind the microphones of the town.

Applause was loud and beautiful cinema stars clattered down the theater aisles, and citizens paid $8.80 per pasteboard to watch the pretty girls trip a little light fantastic on a well-colored stage.

The lads along Broadway began to rub their hands and sharpen up a word they hadn't used in years—"prosperity."

It had a beautiful sound.

On Monday night, for example, the Waldorf's Starlight Roof was a portrait of prosperity at suppertime—due, I suppose, not only to the influx of refugees, the chill in the air, and the sudden plentiful presence of folding money, but to the lure of the entertainment: Eddy Duchin and the charming young dance team, Gower and Jeanne. It's an exceedingly gay set-up the Waldorf has produced.

There among the crowd was Winthrop Rockefeller (who has repealed his moustache, I am happy to say) with Sylvie St. Clair, the cute little French trick who used to sing at le Ruban Bleu. Betty Allen had a ringside table, and so did Carol Bruce, and so did that wholesome outdoor, early-rising country fellow, Thomas Manville.

Xavier Cugat was passing the evening over a glass of lemonade in what might be called a busman's holiday, since he has been conducting the orchestra in that room lo these many weeks.

Eddy's mother-in-law, Mrs. Oelrichs, dropped in to listen to the band, the Eddie LeBarons held hands across their tablecloth, and Joe Penner appeared on the horizon with some new jokes which the waiters kept rushing back to the kitchen to repeat.

Miss Bruce and Miss Allen, who have been called the Summer's Cinderellas, willingly posed with brother Duchin for a new photographer. When the flash bulb went off, there was an instantaneous, simultaneous contest to see which member of the trio could flash the widest, pearliest smile.

Duchin won, by two or three molars.

Over at Spivy's Roof later in the evening the scene reminded me of nothing so much as a Marx Brothers' stateroom. It is a two-by-four room which becomes crowded when a party of four walks in, and on a gay night, such as this one was, it puts the casual caller into a state of happy claustrophobia. Among those who were sitting on chairs, tables, ledges and each other's laps were Billy Rose and Eleanor Holm, Ethel Merman, Joe Schenck, Larry Hart, Vivienne Siegal, Jack Pearl, Hildegarde, Don Loper-Lela Rogers (these two have become hyphenated), George Lloyd and Omar Kiam.

After Frances Comstock had entertained with songs at the piano—and after much coaxing and threatening from the audience—Larry Hart arose and delivered his screamingly funny imitation of Al Jolson. At this wonderful satire, Billy Rose was caught applauding.

"Remember this when I'm old," Hart instructed Rose, "and give me a job at the Diamond Horseshoe."

And the night, of course was noisy with the sound of Al Jolson returning to Broadway in "Hold On to Your Hats."

The limousine, taxi, and bobsled trade drew up to a curb lined ten deep with fans (proving that Manhattan is getting more and more like Hollywood) and there was celebrity-gazers in the street and across the street and hugging the legs of the poor policemen's horses. . . .

Arline Judge, squired by husky Al Bloomingdale, whose left elbow is never without a pretty girl to keep it warm, wore the headdress of the evening—piece of black lace veiling gathered into a ruffle on her head, held down with a gardenia, and flowing over her shoulders into her silver fox. She sat a little behind Sonja Henie, who is now married to Mr. Dan Topping, who was formerly married to Miss Arline Judge, and she (stay with me, this is still Miss Judge) winked at a friend in the audience and made a mocking little moue at the loving couple when Mr. Topping put his arm around the current Mrs. Topping's shoulder.

The current Mrs. Topping looked lovely, if a little more serious than usual, in a simple black dress and an expensive wrap of rare platina fox.

During the intermission Prince Serge Obolensky puffed a cigaret on the crowded sidewalk. The prince was wearing a cream colored silk shirt with his dinner jacket and an expression of complete displeasure: I spent the entire second act of the play worrying about what was bothering the prince.

Hope Hampton's Brulatour, who is the world's best audience, came dimpling up the aisle in a white fox stole saying, "Isn't it swell?" to everyone.

Georgie Hale stood in the back with the standees and worried audibly if unnecessarily; Marion Preminger managed to look more chic than anyone within ten rows of her, and Ethel Merman glittered in a white dress ornamented with sparkling butterflies, a white orchid on her head, and an enviable amount of diamonds slung around her neck.

And The Foursome was on hand. Julie Haydon with George Jean Nathan, Joan Stone with Dick Watts, jr. The Foursome is amusing keen observers of parallel construction because the two lads concerned are critics who generally concur—Dick being the aisle-seater who often takes up the cudgels to convince his confreres that a Nathan specialite like William Saroyan or Paul Vincent Carroll rates all those beautiful adjectives admired by Nathan have been enthusiastically seconded by Watts.

So now Dick has acquired a charming companion who is all but a facsimilie of Julie Haydon, Nathan's chief feminine interest. She is Joan Stone, and it is difficult to tell, at ten paces, which delicate blonde with the long straight hair, quiet dress, and exceedingly slight makeup is Joan, and which is Julie. They are both shy, hatless, and low-voiced.

And the foursome is inseparable. You can tell the girls apart only because Julie will be standing closest to the one with the cigaret holder, who is Nathan, and Joan will be standing by the one with the dark blue shirt, who is Watts.

Cleveland Splits Twin Bill, Holds Half-Game Advantage

Tribe Annexes Opener Against Athletic Club

Mel Harder Handcuffs Philadelphia as Indians Win; Mack Hits Homer.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Venerable Connie Mack, first baseball manager to predict this year's nose dive for the New York Yankees, took a bow today, although—

"The Yankees' late rush made me feel a little worried about my spring prediction that they would finish third," the Philadelphia Athletics' pilot admitted.

A look at the American league standings showed the leading Cleveland Indians a half-game to the front of the Detroit Tigers, four ahead of the Bombers and four and a half better than Chicago.

"But it appears now," Mack beamed as his team made ready for the series finale against the Indian, "as if the White Sox have a chance to beat them out."

Mack didn't say last spring who would beat the Yankees, and he still has no flat prediction, except this:

"Cleveland and Detroit have six more games to play with each other. The team that wins most of them should take the pennant."

The Indians, who shook off a nearly-disastrous slump to capture six of their last eight starts, appear as if they may fit Mr. Mack's specifications.

Cleveland pitchers are breezing along like a 12-cylinder automobile on a newly-paved highway and the war clubs are pulled from the wigwam for a fat inning every now and then.

The Indians produced a seven-run frame yesterday for Mel Harder, who disposed of the first 20 men in order and coasted through to an 8 to 3 victory in the opening half of a wash day bargain bill. Lou Boudreau's two-run double and Ray Mack's four-run homer were the loud noises.

Even Harry Eisenstat, who has had few chances this season because a leg injury kept him on the sidelines more than a month, did well when pressed into service as a starting pitcher in the afterpiece.

* * *

Eisenstat was touched for seven hits, two of them freak doubles producing the deciding tally in the ninth inning, as he lost a 3 to 2 duel to Johnny Babich, ace of Mack's somewhat less than sensational casting corps.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

PHILADELPHIA — (U P) — Those of us who came down here to investigate the report that there was another Henry Armstrong loose on the boxing world in the person of Bob Montgomery were convinced today that the report was started by Bob's relatives or persons who never have seen Hammerin' Hank in action.

* * *

Montgomery was a good lightweight in losing a 10-round decision to Lightweight Champion Lew Jenkins, but no great one. Because a great fighter, or even a near great one would have had the Texan bulldogged and branded well within the 10 round limit.

Jenkins, who apparently looks on training as something unworthy of a champion and fit only for preliminary boys, gave another classic exhibition of what the Danes so prettily describe as 'running out of gas.' He looked like a titleholder for six minutes only. During the first two rounds, before he became winded and arm and leg weary, he punched Montgomery daffy and would have won inside of five rounds had he been able to continue at this pace.

But in the third round he began to droop like day before yesterday's petunias and he wasn't helped any by one of Montgomery's stylish round house rights that dropped him for the count of nine. As a matter of fact the only thing that saved Jenkins from losing the over weight bout (Jenkins 135, Montgomery 137) was his courage. The Texan didn't lack heart as he did in the fiasco with Armstrong in New York not so long ago.

From the third round on Jenkins' punch was gone. Not once but 10 times he connected with his Sunday right hand punch but it didn't do any great damage. The only punches he hurt Montgomery with were lefts to the heart and Jenkins can thank the last one to that region—it came in the middle of the final round—for his victory. It slowed Montgomery enough to enable Lew to win the round and he needed it to get the decision.

As for Montgomery's resemblance to Armstrong, it lies chiefly in color. The Philadelphian tries hard enough to look like Armstrong, but his efforts hinder him rather than help him. Someone should point out to Montgomery that Armstrong throws punches from his crouch, and does not just bob and wave his hand at his side.

The event will be held Oct. 7, 8, 11 and 12. Teams from Mansfield, Shelby, Ashland, Galion and other surrounding towns are set to enter the event, according to Jack Hubert who is in charge of the meet.

Although tug-of-war tournaments are nothing new in sports, this will mark the first time that such an event has ever been staged in Mansfield sports circles.

Under tournament rules each team will consist of seven active "pullers" having a combined weight not exceeding 1,300 pounds. Each team may have substitutes to replace them every three minutes. Twelve matches will be staged each night.

A special constructed platform, 85 feet in length, will be erected on the Coliseum floor for the event, Hubert stated. No entry fee will be charged and prizes will be awarded the winning teams.

* * *

Training of all teams entered in the tournament will be in charge of Hubert, who can be reached by calling Canal 4125. Entry blanks may be secured from Hubert.

Heroes and Goats

(By International News Service)

HEROES—Pep Young, Pirates whose homer gave the Buccaneers a one-run victory over the Giants. Buck Newsom, Tigers whose five-hit pitching gave Detroit a win over Washington and kept the Bengals in the thick of the American League pennant race.

GOATS—Marius Russo, Yankees who was batted from the box in the first inning by the Browns. Charles Frye, Phillies whose wildness helped the Cardinals gain a split in a double-header.

CARPENTER LOSES

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—Jack Carpenter of Columbus lost by a technical knockout in the fifth round to John Henry Thomas of Pittsburgh last night. Each fighter weighed 156.

Crestline Seeks 10th Win Against Galion Gridders

Crestline high school's undefeated football team will be out after its 10th straight victory this week in one of seven games on tap for fans in this area Friday as the 1940 grid season swings into the second week.

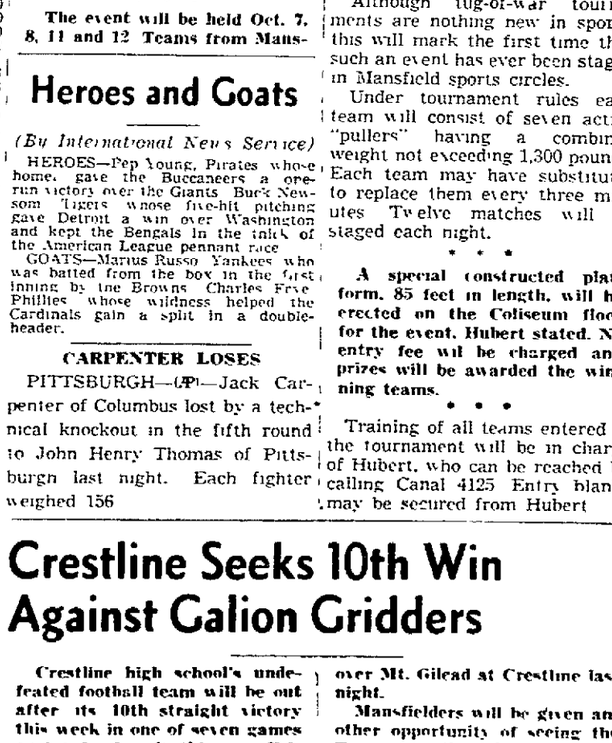
Coach Merle Hutson's squad will travel to Galion to tackle the Galion Orangemen in a night contest and a non-conference tilt.

The Onondagas opened their 1940 schedule with a 12-0 win over Mt. Gilead at Crestline last night.

Mansfielders will be given another opportunity of seeing the Tygers in action when they meet Cambridge high at Stadium field in their second home appearance of the season under the floodlights.

The Madison Rams will make their initial home appearance Friday night meeting New London under the lights. Bellville high meets Granville at Bellville in an afternoon contest.

Brooklyn Fan Pummels Ump



As the Brooklyn Dodgers lost a tight game to the Cincinnati Reds in New York, an irate Dodger fan leaped from the stands, grabbed Umpire George Magerkurth and started to vent his feelings in a free-for-all fashion. The punching-wrestling struggle is shown just before field police arrived.

Face Tough Foe

Mansfield Tygers to Face Veteran Cambridge Team Friday Night.

MANSFIELD high's Tygers face another veteran team when they go after their second straight football triumph against Cambridge at 8 p. m. Friday at Stadium field.

Cambridge invades the Tyger laid with a lineup including eight lettermen and are expected to give the Mansfield team a tougher battle than Akron West did last week.

Although the Tygers were unimpressive in chalking up a 14 to 13 win over Akron last week, Coach Paul Snyder is sending his proteges through extensive blocking drills this week and believes his boys can whip Cambridge.

Mansfield appeared weak in forming interference for the backs against Akron and Snyder hopes he can correct the errors before the Cambridge affray.

In the Cambridge lineup are Frank Collart, a husky fullback, who is expected to be one of the mainstays of the visitors' attack. He is noted for his great defensive play and can plough into the line. Collart tips the Toledos around the 170 mark.

Also in the Cambridge lineup will be Dennard, 207-pound colored tackle. He was a standout as Cambridge took a 32 to 7 drubbing from the touted Parkersburgh, W. Va., club last week.

Snyder is not planning many changes in the starting lineup, but indicated today that if the youngsters didn't show more fight they would be replaced by promising sophomores.

Scrambled American League Pennant Race Keeps Going

(By Associated Press)

THE scrambled American league pennant struggle may go to the last day of the season before it's settled, so today's best advice for bewildered fans is to save their shouting until the shooting is over.

Cleveland divided a doubleheader with the Philadelphia Athletics yesterday, winning the first 8-3 and losing the second 3-2. This was good enough to hold the lead, but the Detroit Tigers gnawed the margin down to half a game by routing the Washington Senators 9-2.

* * *

The case for a two-team finish comes from the crushing setbacks sustained by the third-place New York Yankees and fourth-place Chicago White Sox, leaving this standing:

Club	W.	L.	Pct.	Games To Behind	Play
Cleveland ..	82	60	.577	—	12
Detroit	81	60	.574	½	13
New York..	77	63	.550	4	11
Chicago ..	78	65	.545	4½	11

The only club that has cracked so far is the Yankees, who were shattered 16-4 by the St. Louis Browns yesterday. This was the sixth loss in seven games for the champs and the largest score against them this year.

The White Sox's 6-2 defeat by Boston was their first loss in nine games and could be charged jointly to the five hit pitching of Jack Wilson and five errors made by Chicago.

The Cincinnati Reds almost sewed the final stitches in another National League pennant by beating Brooklyn 4-3 in ten innings to drop the Dodgers ten games behind the pace.

The Pittsburgh Pirates whipped the New York Giants 7-6 in a home run battle, getting three circuit blows to two that Mel Ott hit for the terrible Terrymen, who ran their losing streak to eight games.

* * *

The St. Louis Cardinals preserved a slim hold on third place by dividing two games with the Phillies. After losing the first 3-2 to old Si Johnson's five-hit hurling they captured the second 7-1.

Massillon High's Gridders Are "Red Hot" This Year

By JOHN H. COLBURN.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Up at Massillon the townspeople are all in a dither again. Massillon high's football team is "hot."

In that steel city of 26,000, seventeen thousand fans turned out last Friday night to see the Tigers steamroller Cleveland Cathedral Latin into submission, 64-0. And most of them came away convinced that Coach Paul Brown has another wonder team.

With almost flawless precision, the Tigers rolled up 20 points in the first five minutes and then coasted. These Tigers aren't exceptionally big, but they're fast, elusive and their blocking is deadly.

It was Massillon's 24th consecutive football victory and labeled the Tigers as not only an outstanding Ohio eleven but one ranking with the nation's top-notchers in the scholastic field.

Massillon, like scores of other Ohio schools, pried off the football lid less than two weeks after school opened. Most of the other high school teams play their first games this week-end.

Toledo Waite, which defeated Portsmouth in the post-season Buckeye Bowl game here last year, made an impressive showing by handing Chicago Lindblom a 31-7 thumping.

One of the big surprises in the season inaugurals was the 20-0 defeat given Piqua by the Class B Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans home eleven from Xenia.

Coach George Woerlein believes that the O. S. S. O. eleven, packing power and deception, will be among the top "B" squads in the state. It gets another Class A test Friday in a "hometown natural" against Xenia Central, which had trouble tying Wilmington.

Another upset was Toledo Devilbiss' 25-0 shutout of Hamilton, which was unbeaten in 1939 and loser of but two games in its last 27.

The winners presented a razzle-dazzle attack which completely bewildered the visitors.

Toledo Woodward also staged an upset by trouncing Bryan, 19-6.

Greenville's sterling brother baseball battery, Pitcher Dan Canon and Catcher Bob Canon, ran wild on the gridiron in pacing Greenville to a 48-0 win over Bradford.

Lancaster exhibited plenty of power in trouncing Bremen, 52-0. Lorain used only six basic plays in drubbing Akron North 33-0. Cleveland Collinwood edged Sandusky 20 to 7—as Collinwood's Nate Diliberto ripped off gains totalling 270 yards — and Mansfield inaugurated night football by beating Akron West 14-13. Eighty-yard runs by Quarterback George Sarkis and Halfback Elroy Jones were features of the field game.

These winners and Canton McKinley, which trimmed Cleveland Lincoln, 57-0, all indicated they would be tough to beat this year. Mount Vernon, usually a strong eleven, was too slow as it lost to Dennison, 33-0.

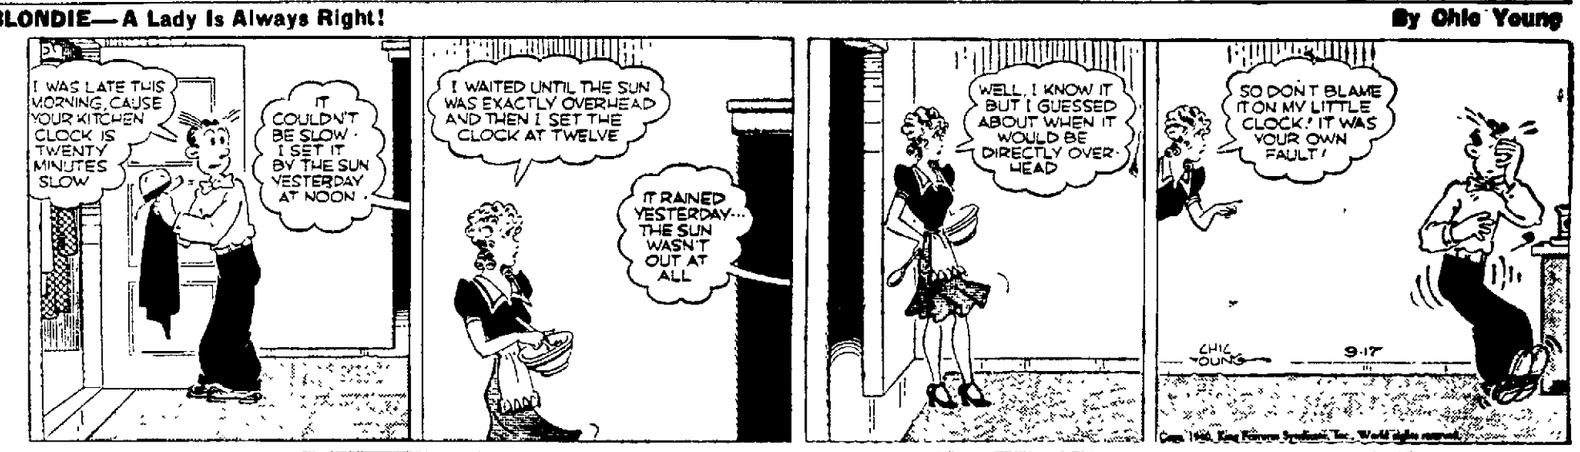
BLONDIE— A Lady Is Always Right!

By Chic Young



I WAS LATE THIS MORNING, CAUSE YOUR KITCHEN CLOCK IS TWENTY MINUTES SLOW
IT COULDN'T BE SLOW- I SET IT BY THE SUN YESTERDAY AT NOON-
I WAITED UNTIL THE SUN WAS EXACTLY OVERHEAD AND THEN I SET THE CLOCK AT TWELVE
IT RAINED YESTERDAY--- THE SUN WASN'T OUT AT ALL
WELL, I KNOW IT BUT I GUESSED ABOUT WHEN IT WOULD BE DIRECTLY OVERHEAD
SO DON'T BLAME IT ON MY LITTLE CLOCK! IT WAS YOUR OWN FAULT!

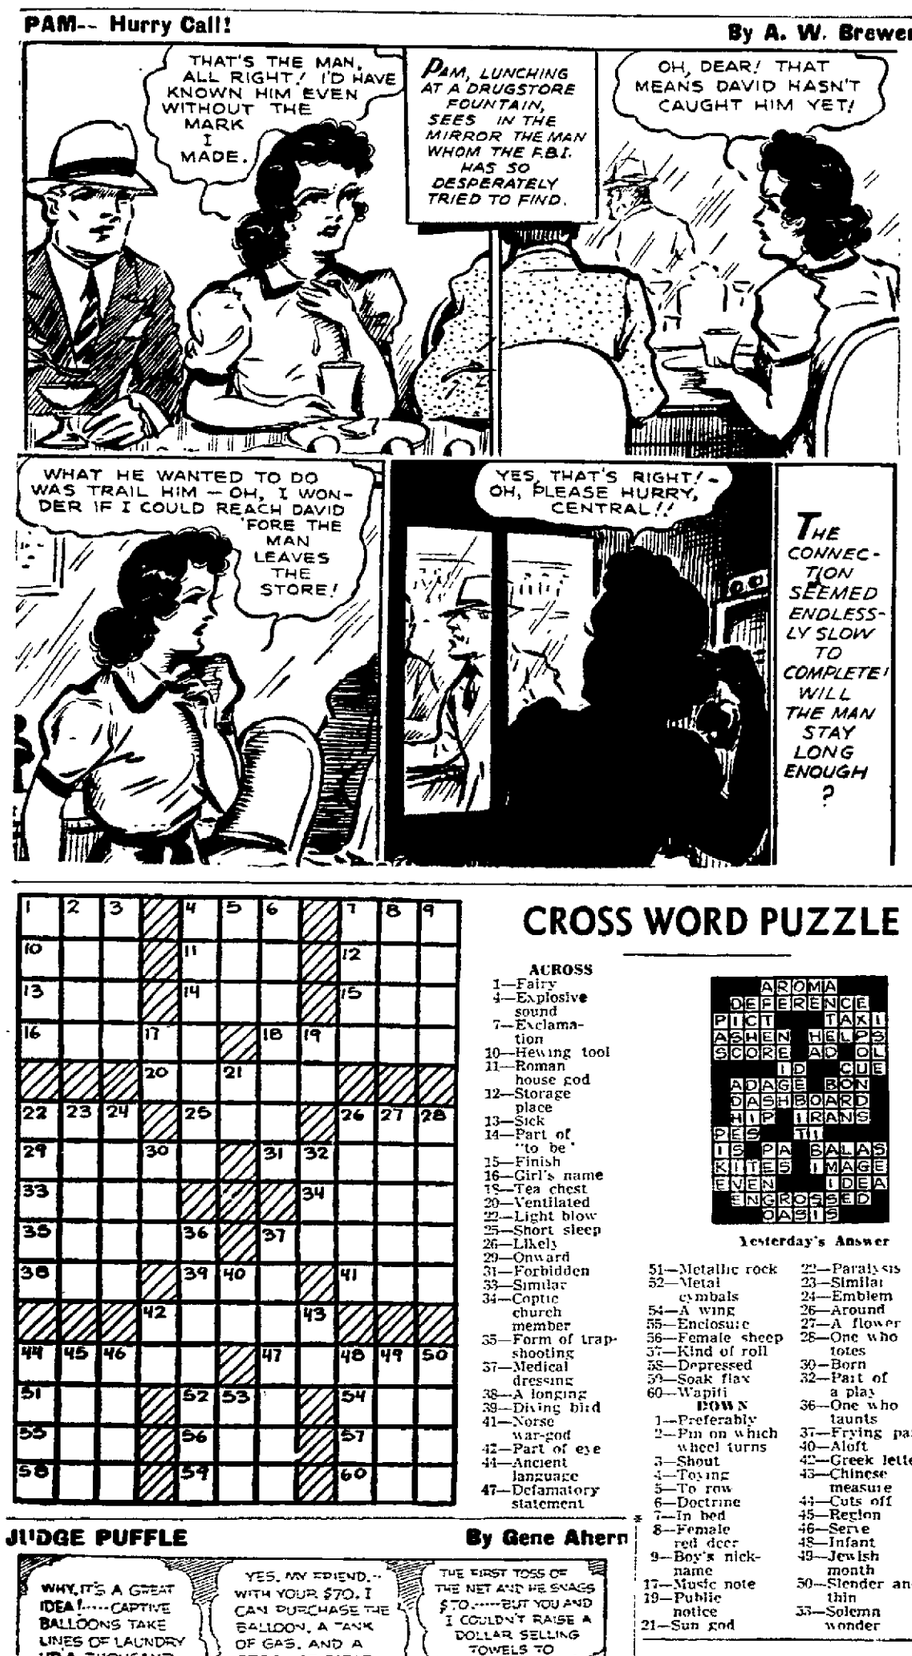
PAM-- Hurry Call!

By A. W. Brewerton



THAT'S THE MAN, ALL RIGHT! I'D HAVE KNOWN HIM EVEN WITHOUT THE MARK I MADE.
PAM, LUNCHING AT A DRUGSTORE FOUNTAIN, SEES IN THE MIRROR THE MAN WHOM THE F.B.I. HAS SO DESPERATELY TRIED TO FIND.
OH, DEAR! THAT MEANS DAVID HASN'T CAUGHT HIM YET!
WHAT HE WANTED TO DO WAS TRAIL HIM — OH, I WONDER IF I COULD REACH DAVID 'FORE THE MAN LEAVES THE STORE!
YES, THAT'S RIGHT!- OH, PLEASE HURRY, CENTRAL!!
THE CONNECTION SEEMED ENDLESSLY SLOW TO COMPLETE! WILL THE MAN STAY LONG ENOUGH ?

THE NEBBS— Good-Bye.

MAYBE IT'S SOMETHING YOU ATE- IT WILL PASS AWAY

LEADING ISSUES PACING RALLY IN MART TODAY

Steels, Aircrafts, Motors In List Receiving Support; Market Acts Fatigued.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Leading stocks today added fractions to Monday's rally but the market, as a whole, acted a bit fatigued.

Ahead at one time were U. S Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Boeing, Glenn Martin, Packard, N. Y. Central, General Electric, Woolworth and U. S. Rubber.

The London securities market was lifeless. Bonds exhibited selective improvement, as did major commodities.

Financial quarters found a cheerful indicator in the statement of federal reserve member banks in 101 cities for the week ended Sept. 11 disclosing a jump of $91.000,000 in commercial loans.

Studied was the summary of the F. W. Dodge Corp. placing public and private building in 37 eastern states last night at the highest level in the past 10 years.

described the visit here of Ramon Serrano Suner, brother-in-law of Generalissimo Francisco Franco and minister of the interior of Spain, as opening up discussion of "all questions" of interest to both sountries.

These sources said the presence of Gen. Attilio Teruzzi, minister of Italian Africa, at the same time was a coincidence, and not indicative of an intention to redivide colonial areas.

Teruzzi conferred with Adolf Hitler today, however, after Serrano Suner had visited the fuehrer for 90 minutes.

Channel Storms Aid British.

BULLETIN

LONDON —(AP)— A westerly gale sweeping through the English channel throughout last night scattered Germany's invasion fleet and sent her ships scurrying for shelter, the air ministry announced today in giving reports of British reconnaissance planes.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON — Channel storms and inland fog — the former a white-capped barrier to seaborne invasion and the latter making land targets hard to find from the air — were welcomed by bomb-harassed Britain today, but German warplanes roared through the thick mists to aim new destruction at England.

By mid-morning the Germans had made two daylight raids here following one of the heaviest night assaults on the British capital.

Another morning raid by a lone attacker on a southeast English town caused considerable damage and a number of casualties. With bombs, hurled on a shopping center and private dwellings.

The air ministry announced German bombs fell last night in the heart of London's exclusive Mayfair area of the west end. Bond, Regent, and Oxford streets, Piccadilly, Park Lane, Berkeley and Sloan Squares were hit.

An official announcement said that the night attacks were concentrated on the London area and that a number of fires were started and considerable damage done, but that casualties "on the whole, do not appear to have been heavy."

One of the daylight attackers was believed downed by anti-aircraft fire and another was reported snared in a balloon barrage cable during the night.

The admiralty announced that for the week ending Sept. 9 the Germans sank 54,547 tons of British, Allied and neutral merchant shipping—a figure slightly above the weekly average of 53,900 tons, but less than a third of the 188,500 tons claimed by the Nazis.

Bringing what Britons considered to be relief from the danger of a channel invasion, a southwest wind of near-gale velocity churned the Straits of Dover.

British seamen, watching the white-capped channel with practiced eye, said the blow looked like the beginning of the fall storms and declared that Adolf Hitler had lost his best chance to attempt a landing on the shores of England.

From the Dover coast an Associated Press correspondent telephoned this report to London: "It's 'Churchill weather' here this morning. There's a nasty cross sea running and the channel would be bad for regular steamers in peacetime, let alone for any flat-bottomed troop barges."

London, battered for the tenth successive night by large numbers of Nazi warplanes, had its first daylight alarm of the day at 7:59 a. m. (1:59 a. m. EST), but the all clear sounded 17 minutes later without incident in the capital area.

A second alarm sounded at 9:09 a. m. (3:09 a. m. EST).

Several minutes before the alarm sounded passengers in a train standing outside a station in the London area reported hearing an airplane engine above the clouds and then a nearby anti-aircraft gun fired one round. A terrific crash on the opposite side of a hill followed accompanied by an explosion which suggested the plane had crashed.

This alarm was lifted 55 minutes later, the all clear sounding at 10:04 a. m.

The Germans apparently hurled a greater number of planes than usual into the attack upon London last night and early this morning, but heavy fogs limited the effectiveness of their operations and broke them up.

Numerous high explosive and incendiary bombs were dropped on the metropolitan area, starting a number of fires and causing some casualties—including several firemen who were killed while fighting a large blaze in central London.

Just as cheering to the British as the weather news were announcements of continued Royal Air Force successes in attacks on German barge concentrations and channel bases.

"Invasion armada in chaos" exulted the London Mail in large headlines. "Havoc in channel bases" shouted the News Chronicle and the jubilant Express proclaimed "invader Hitler gets big battering."

WILLKIE DRAWS HUGE CROWDS

Applause Greets Candidate Using New Technique In Oklahoma.

He goes into that state extremely optimistic.

Willkie has maintained from the outset that the solid south could be cracked and, with the third term as a wedge, he means to try his theory in Texas.

If he gets a response, it is probable that after his western trip he will make a special trip into the deep south, invading every Democratic stronghold.

Adopting a new speaking pace, Willkie scored both at Coffeyville and Tulsa with his attacks on the New Deal and particularly with his challenge of the necessity for a continuance in office of President Roosevelt.

Speaking more slowly and distinctly than he ever has, the candidate seemed to get over his points to the audiences more effectively than in his earlier speeches.

Willkie charged that one of the chief factors in the present international crisis was America's failure to recover from the depression during the Roosevelt administrations. Prosperity in American and trade with America would have saved the other democracies that have since fallen or are now threatened, Willkie said.

"But, Mr. Roosevelt was heedless of his responsibility," he continued. "He launched a political attack against our enterprises; he kept our economic system in turmoil; he made our depression permanent.

"Instead of leading the way to a new world, this administration helped to drag the old world back into chaos. It materially assisted Hitler in his aggressive plans."

In addition, Willkie charged, Mr. Roosevelt, through oratory, sought to conceal "the fact that by his own meddling in international politics he encouraged the European conflagration."

COUNTY TO HAVE 3 DRAFT OFFICES

Preparations Under Way For Registration Day Set For Oct. 15.

time a man enters his registration office until he takes a train for an army post:

In his registration office he will fill out two simple registration cards; one goes to the county and the other he keeps—and should always carry with him to prove he registered. Two unpaid workers assigned by the election board will be on duty in each precinct to assist the men.

On the morning after registration, one member of each draft board (there will be 388 in the state) will go to the election board and receive the cards of the men in his area. These will be taken back to the draft office where they will be thoroughly shuffled and counted. A number will be assigned to each card in the order of counting and that number becomes the registrant's "serial number."

The list of serial numbers and the men will be posted in a public place and published in the daily newspapers. The draft boards will telephone the number of registrants in its area to the state draft board in Columbus. Every state will report its numbers to the national board in Washington.

In Washington, numbers from one up to the highest number assigned in any one district in the nation will be placed in a bowl and drawn by lot as they were prior to conscription for World war service. The first number drawn in Washington will apply to every man having that serial number over the nation. As each serial number is drawn, the men having that number will be sent questionnaires.

Once the questionnaires are filled out, the classification begins. There are four grades of classification: 1—men available immediately; 2—service deferred because registrant is engaged in essential occupation; 3—service deferred because of dependents; and 4—service deferred by law—legislators, judges and high office holders.

Each registrant will have five days in which to fill out his questionnaire. If he is chosen, subject to various appeals, he is "in the army" from that date forward.

Out of the 16,000,000 it is expected that the first call will take one out of every 40 men, or about 400,000.

There will be one draft office in Ashland; two for Crawford county, both in Bucyrus; two in Coshocton for the city and county; and two in Huron county, both in Norwalk.

MANSFIELD METHODIST PASTORS RE-ASSIGNED TO PULPITS HERE

Two Mansfield ministers were re-assigned and a number of other pastors in the Richland county area received assignments in Delaware today during closing sessions of the 29th annual conference of the Northwest Ohio district of the Methodist church.

In the closing session, resolutions attacking the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill as a "flagrant denial of civil liberties," and condemnation of the growth of anti-semitism were unanimously adopted by the delegates. The resolutions, opposing any defensive or aggressive war, guaranteed church protection for conscientious objectors.

The Mansfield ministers who were reappointed are Rev. R. L. Foulke of the Central Methodist church and Rev. E. G. Corwin of the First Methodist church. Rev. H. W. Petersen was again elected superintendent of the Mansfield district.

vided in the guard mobilization bill. Men and officers under the rank of captain are given 20 days in which to claim exemption because of dependents. The number of men in the battery can not drop below 60, which is maintenance strength.

Capt. Nichols said that men who had dependents and no other income other than their pay of $30 per month, probably would have to drop out of the guard, but he anticipates there will be less than 20. Recruiting will continue, he said to replace these exempted men.

Rigid physical examinations may reduce the ranks still further, as every guardsman entering upon the 12 months training period must be in first class condition. These examinations will be made soon after mobilization.

While a point of concentration has not been decided upon, it was believed likely that it would be Camp Perry or the state fairgrounds at Columbus or both, Nichols said.

Only three units of Ohio's 37th Division have been exempted from the order to mobilize. They were the 37th tank company, Port Clinton; and companies F and I at Steubenville and Mt. Vernon. Both of these are medical units and will not be needed, according to state officers.

When the war department order becomes effective next month, Adjutant General Gilson D. Light and Brigadier General Robert S. Beightler, Ohio director of highways, will be called for state service. Beightler commands the 74th brigade and Light is a major general in the regular army. Light said he would ask Gov. Bricker for a year's leave of absence from the adjutant general's post.

torized forces drove on to Sidi Barrani from Sollum, the Rome press began to assume that Egypt soon would declare war. Il Messagero said:

"From the military viewpoint, an eventual Egyptian declaration of war under pressure from Great Britain will leave Italy entirely indifferent. It will not appreciably increase the task of Italian troops."

This same paper, in a Berlin dispatch, sought to disabuse its readers of any belief that Germany has postponed the offensive against England.

"The second fortnight of September," Il Messagero said, "will not end without decisive events."

Virginio Gayda, authoritative fascist spokesman, said that Italian troops were advancing along the Mediterranean coastal road after taking Sidi Barrani.

"Italian troops are now hammering at the second line of British fortifications," he wrote in the Giornale D'Italia.

"British forces in Egypt as of August 1 totalled 110,000 men from all parts of the empire. Reinforcements have since been brought in, including 500 airplanes and 1,000 armored cars convoyed by way of the Cape of Good Hope."

RIOTING ENDS

Order Restored In Mexico After Five Are Killed, 100 Hurt.

MEXICO CITY —(INS)— Order was restored in Mexico today after independence day rioting between followers of the rival presidential candidates in which five persons were killed and at least 100 injured.

Centering in the federal district in which Mexico City is situated, the disorders filled the Red Cross and Green Cross hospitals with scores of casualties among followers of General Manuel Avila Camacho and Juan Andreu Almazan as public declarations of allegiance flared into gunfire and fisticuffs.

BRICKER'S FRAUDULENT CLAIMS

When Martin L. Davey was Governor, he prided himself on making his public statements so accurate that none was ever challenged, not even by his severest critics.

Martin L. Davey

But we have another glaring example of Bricker's careless falsehoods in his oft-repeated claim that he inherited a $3,000,000.00 deficit. As a matter of fact, Davey left him an unencumbered cash balance of $3,000,000.00 in the general revenue fund. Mr. Bricker wanted to make himself out as some kind of financial wizard, and so he invented the idea of a deficit.

Last November, when he went down to New York to address the Ohio Society, he lugged along his alleged deficit; but when he looked at the tall buildings in New York, $5,000,000.00 did not seem very big, so he hiked the deficit promptly to $40,000,000.00.

At the first of this year, he claimed to have a surplus of two and a half million. What a superman genius he was to change a deficit of $40,000,000.00 in November to a surplus of two and a half million in January.

Mr. Bricker claims to be a lawyer. If so, he should understand the constitution and laws of Ohio. Davey is not a lawyer, but is a successful business man. He claims to understand the English language.

The constitution of Ohio prohibits any State debt, without a vote of the people, in unmistakable language, except $750,000 that must be voted by the Legislature for emergency purposes.

There was such a State debt of $750,000 when Davey first became Governor, but he paid it off at the end of the first year. There has been no such debt since that time.

The State laws on financial matters are very, very strict. No money can be spent unless it is first appropriated by the Legislature, and is in the bank. The Director of Finance must certify that the money has been appropriated and is on hand.

The State Auditor is prohibited by law from issuing checks, unless the Director of Finance certifies that the money has been appropriated, and is in the bank. If the auditor would draw one check, contrary to these stringent laws, he could be thrown out of office, and the money could be collected on his bond.

There was no State debt when Davey became Governor (except $750,000, which he paid off at the end of his first year.) There was no State debt when Davey left the Governor's office. There is no State debt now. There will be no State debt in the future, unless it is voted by the people.

Mr. Bricker shows himself to be a very poor lawyer, by his fraudulent claims about a deficit, which does not exist and cannot exist. He also shows himself to be intellectually dishonest.

Three States Vote In Primaries; Labor Tiff Watched

CONFLICT SEEN AS INDEX ON THIRD TERM

New Mexico Candidate Issues Charge of 'Intimidation,' Predicts Investigation.

(By Associated Press)

New York, Massachusetts and Wisconsin voted in primary elections today. Connecticut Republicans met in a nominating convention. And the outcome of New Mexico's ding-dong Democratic contest for nomination to the U. S. senate promised to have a sequel.

In New York, where 162 contests were listed for nominations to congress and the state legislature, much interest attached to the battle in the American Labor party between the so-called right wing which supports President Roosevelt and the left wing which opposes a third term.

Since ALP contributed 275,000 votes to Mr. Roosevelt in 1936 and 420,000 to Democratic Governor Lehman in 1938, the intra-party conflict was watched for an index of third-term sentiment.

Another aspect of the election receiving attention was the comeback attempt of John J. O'Connor, the only congressional incumbent to be defeated among the several opposed by the administration in 1938. O'Connor seeks to regain the nomination from James H. Fay, administration stalwart.

In the Massachusetts primary Senator Walsh, Democrat, and Henry Parkman, former Boston corporation counsel, Republican, were without opposition for U. S. senate nominations. Major interest centered on the Democratic gubernatorial contest between Atty. Gen. Paul A. Dever and former Lieut. Gov. Francis E. Kelly.

Voters in Wisconsin, where Senator La Follette is unopposed for the Progressive party's nomination, found the name of a dead man among the candidates for the Republican U. S. senate nomination. Dr. Glenn Frank, one of the seven entered in the contest, was killed in an auto accident Sunday night after the ballots had been printed, carrying his name.

State officials, in an informal opinion, said that if a vote plurality should be cast for Dr. Frank, the Republican state central committee would have to select a senatorial candidate.

In the Connecticut state convention of the Republican party there was a three-cornered fight for nomination to the U. S. senate. The rivals were Paul L. Cornell, preparatory school owner; former Lieutenant Governor Clifford B. Wilson, and Brigadier-General John P. Parker, of World war fame.

Out in New Mexico final unofficial tabulations in last Saturday's primary gave Sen. Chavez a small but apparently adequate lead over Rep. Dempsey for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

Attacking "political bosses," Dempsey charged that "the people have been intimidated." He announced that "30 to 40 FBI agents" would arrive in the state, agents 'who investigated and disclosed the workings of the Pendergast gang in Kansas City."

In Washington the FBI said that Dempsey had requested last week an investigation of alleged coercion and intimidation of voters. What action was taken on the request was not indicated.

START INQUIRY

Railroad Detectives Open Mail Theft Probe.

While postoffice officials awaited the arrival of federal postal inspectors in Mansfield, railroad detectives today had launched their own investigation into the theft of a mail pouch from the Union depot.

The pouch, slashed open and rifled of most of its contents, was discovered yesterday between two chicken houses on North Main street.

It was consigned to Ashland and had been trucked to the depot here to be transferred to a train. Police believe it was taken from the platform last Thursday.

Postmaster Herman E. Homberger said today that both Pennsylvania and Erie railroad detectives had started a joint investigation, pending arrival of postal inspectors.

DRAFT FACED BY MILLIONS

American Men Between 21 and 35 Will Register Oct. 16.

Actually, those who will aid in administering the peacetime conscription act already were working at high speed against registration day and an undesignated date in November when—Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, announced last night—the first thousands of draftees would be summoned. This first group is expected to number 75,000.

Marshall's announcement obviously was predicated on the belief that congress would approve the recent presidential request for an additional $2,000,000,000 defense appropriation, largely to defray the cost of the draft.

It also places an absolute limit of 900,000 on the number of draftees in training at any one time, and that means that the vast majority of those who sign registration cards will never learn the manual of arms or see the inside of a tank.

The president, in a statement issued when the proclamation was signed, said that many of these others "may serve their country best by holding their posts on the production line."

Still others, he said, would stay at home because of "individuals dependent upon them for support." Thousands more will be deferred for failure to meet physical tests.

The president called the method "fair . . . sure . . . democratic . . . the will of our people."

"Our young men," he said, "will come from the factories and the fields, the cities and the towns, to enroll their names on registration day.

"On that eventful day," he declared, "my generation will salute their generation.

"May we all renew within our hearts that conception of liberty and that way of life which we have all inherited.

"May we all strengthen our resolve to hold high the torch of freedom in this darkening world so that our children and their children may not be robbed of their rightful inheritance."

His proclamation went on to say that "we cannot remain indifferent to the philosophy of force now rampant in the world."

General Marshall in a raido address a few hours later added that the threat of military danger to this country "trembles on the verge of becoming a probability."

Erie offices will remain in the passenger car until offices in the new station, on which construction has started, are ready for occupancy.

TELLS FARMERS TO WAIT TILL AFTER SEPT. 26 TO SOW WHEAT

Richland county farmers will have a better chance of harvesting a good wheat crop next summer if they wait until after Sept. 26 to sow their wheat, County Agent George B. Ganyard said today.

Hessian fly infestation is more likely in grain sown early, the county agent explained. He added that Sept. 26 is the fly-free date in the Richland county area.

"Grain sown before that time gains enough headway in the fall to permit the adult flies to lay eggs in the stalk, resulting in heavy damage to next year's crop," Ganyard said.

The 1939 crop had a 20 per cent infestation with Hessian flies, but farmers last year were unable to sow their grain until the last week in September and the infestation this year was only two per cent, Ganyard pointed out.

Wheat sowing for the 1941 crop is expected to be well under way in the county in two weeks although a number of farmers only recently finished threshing their 1940 crop.

The county's wheat allotment under the federal AAA program is 27,778 acres, an increase of six acres over last year. Farmers participating in the federal program must keep their acreage within that limit to receive full payment from the government for reducing their acreage and improving their land.

ROOSEVELT ESCORTS BANKHEAD BODY TO ALABAMA FOR FUNERAL

ABOARD PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S SPECIAL TRAIN EN ROUTE TO JASPER, Ala. —(AP)—President Roosevelt and nearly 100 members of congress escorted the body of Speaker William B. Bankhead through Dixie today for funeral services this afternoon in the sorrowing town of Jasper, Ala.

En route with the president to honor the veteran Democratic leader were six members of his cabinet and other high officials of the Roosevelt administration.

Mr. Roosevelt's special train was preceded by another bearing the speaker's body, members of his family, 27 senators and 68 representatives who served in the house with Bankhead.

Secretary of State Hull remained in Washington because, a presidential secretary told reporters, he did not think that he and the president should both be away from the Capitol at the same time in view of conditions abroad.

Funeral services for Bankhead, who died early Sunday of a ruptured abdominal artery, will be conducted at 3:30 p. m. (EST) in the First Methodist church at Jasper, where he had been a member for many years.

The funeral train was scheduled to arrive at 11 a. m. in the town where the speaker and his brother, Sen. John H. Bankhead, opened law offices in 1900.

Dr. T. L. McDonald, pastor, will conduct the services and burial will be in Oak Hill cemetery, where Bankhead's parents are buried.

Rev. Sam Rayburn of Texas was elected to succeed him as speaker yesterday.

4 Motorists 'Play Game' Get Fines In Justice Court

Playing "follow the leader" in their automobiles cost four motorists 10 dollars and costs in Justice of the Peace R. R. Teeter's court at Ashland yesterday.

Apparently weary of following a slow truck ahead of them east of Ashland on Route 42, and unable to pass on the left side, the four motorists, lead by Henry E. Allman of Cleveland, decided that the only thing to do was to pass on the right side of the truck, Highway Patrolmen said.

They did, but a highway patrol cruiser crew was on hand to witness the "game." Patrolmen rounded up all four and brought them into Justice Teeter's court.

The motorists were Allman, Glenn M. Dilgard, Loudonville; Louis W. Henshaw, Huntington, W. Va., and Roy E. Wirth, Sterling.

CLAIM LONDON HIT BY SHELLS FROM BIG GUNS

Nazis Report Use of Cannon Across Channel; Weather Aids British.

described the visit here of Ramon Serrano Suner, brother-in-law of Generalissimo Francisco Franco and minister of the interior of Spain, as opening up discussion of "all questions" of interest to both sountries.

These sources said the presence of Gen. Attilio Teruzzi, minister of Italian Africa, at the same time was a coincidence, and not indicative of an intention to redivide colonial areas.

Teruzzi conferred with Adolf Hitler today, however, after Serrano Suner had visited the fuehrer for 90 minutes.

Channel Storms Aid British.

BULLETIN

LONDON —(AP)— A westerly gale sweeping through the English channel throughout last night scattered Germany's invasion fleet and sent her ships scurrying for shelter, the air ministry announced today in giving reports of British reconnaissance planes.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON — Channel storms and inland fog — the former a white-capped barrier to seaborne invasion and the latter making land targets hard to find from the air — were welcomed by bomb-harassed Britain today, but German warplanes roared through the thick mists to aim new destruction at England.

By mid-morning the Germans had made two daylight raids here following one of the heaviest night assaults on the British capital.

Another morning raid by a lone attacker on a southeast English town caused considerable damage and a number of casualties, with bombs, hurled on a shopping center and private dwellings.

The air ministry announced German bombs fell last night in the heart of London's exclusive Mayfair area of the west end. Bond, Regent, and Oxford streets, Piccadilly, Park Lane, Berkeley and Sloan Squares were hit.

An official announcement said that the night attacks were concentrated on the London area and that a number of fires were started and considerable damage done, but that casualties "on the whole, do not appear to have been heavy."

One of the daylight attackers was believed downed by anti-aircraft fire and another was reported snared in a balloon barrage cable during the night.

The admiralty announced that for the week ending Sept. 9 the Germans sank 54,547 tons of British, Allied and neutral merchant shipping—a figure slightly above the weekly average of 53,900 tons, but less than a third of the 188,500 tons claimed by the Nazis.

Bringing what Britons considered to be relief from the danger of a channel invasion, a southwest wind of near-gale velocity churned the Straits of Dover.

British seamen, watching the white-capped channel with practiced eye, said the blow looked like the beginning of the fall storms and declared that Adolf Hitler had lost his best chance to attempt a landing on the shores of England.

From the Dover coast an Associated Press correspondent telephoned this report to London: "It's 'Churchill weather' here this morning. There's a nasty cross sea running and the channel would be bad for regular steamers in peacetime, let alone for any flat-bottomed troop barges."

London, battered for the tenth successive night by large numbers of Nazi warplanes, had its first daylight alarm of the day at 7:59 a. m. (1:59 a. m. EST), but the all clear sounded 17 minutes later without incident in the capital area.

A second alarm sounded at 9:00 a. m. (3:00 a. m. EST).

Several minutes before the alarm sounded passengers in a train standing outside a station in the London area reported hearing an airplane engine above the clouds and then a nearby anti-aircraft gun fired one round. A terrific crash on the opposite side of a hill followed, accompanied by an explosion which suggested the plane had crashed.

This alarm was [illegible] minutes later, the all clear sounding at 10:04 a. m.

The Germans apparently hurled a greater number of planes than usual into the attack upon London last night and early this morning, but heavy fogs limited the effectiveness of their operations and broke them up.

Numerous high explosive and incendiary bombs were dropped on the metropolitan area, starting a number of fires and causing some casualties—including several children who were killed when a bomb struck a large blaze in east London.

Just as cheering to the British as the weather news were announcements of continued Royal Air Force successes in attacks on German barge concentrations and channel bases.

Invasion armada in chaos" exulted the London Mail in large headlines. "Havoc in crammed barges" shouted the News Chronicle, and the strident Express proclaimed "invader Hitler gets his battering."

Pilot Trainers, Students End Course

Shown in the top photograph are officials of the Richland county chapter of the National Aeronautical association, sponsors of the Civil Aeronautics Authority's civilian pilot training program in Mansfield, as they conducted a ground school examination for 42 students who ended five weeks of instruction in primary training at Senior high school last night. They are Howard Odell, left; Norman Kann, president of the chapter, center, and J. R. Harrington, instructor. Below is Miss Florence Bricheisen of Ashland, one of the three girls in the class, taking time out for refreshments, as she pored over the lengthy examination papers prepared by the government to test the students knowledge of aviation. Fifteen flight scholarships will be awarded to those with highest grades. Announcement will be made from Washington where the test papers have been sent for approval.

WILLKIE DRAWS HUGE CROWDS

Applause Greets Candidate Using New Technique In Oklahoma.

He goes into that state extremely optimistic.

Willkie has maintained from the outset that the solid south could be cracked and, with the third term as a wedge, he means to try his theory in Texas.

If he gets a response, it is probable that after his western trip he will make a special trip into the deep south, invading every Democratic stronghold.

Adopting a new speaking pace, Willkie scored both at Coffeyville and Tulsa with his attacks on the New Deal and particularly with his challenge of the necessity for a continuance in office of President Roosevelt.

Speaking more slowly and distinctly than he ever has, the candidate seemed to get over his points to the audiences more effectively than in his earlier speeches.

Willkie charged that one of the chief factors in the present international crisis was America's failure to recover from the depression during the Roosevelt administrations. Prosperity in American and trade with America would have saved the other democracies that have since fallen or are now threatened, Willkie said.

"But, Mr. Roosevelt was heedless of his responsibility," he continued. "He launched a political attack against our enterprises; he kept our economic system in turmoil; he made our depression permanent.

"Instead of leading the way to a new world, this administration helped to drag the old world back into chaos. It materially assisted Hitler in his aggressive plans."

In addition, Willkie charged, Mr. Roosevelt, through oratory, sought to conceal "the fact that by his own meddling in international politics he encouraged the European conflagration."

MANSFIELD METHODIST PASTORS RE-ASSIGNED TO PULPITS HERE

Two Mansfield ministers were re-assigned and a number of other pastors in the Richland county area received assignments in Delaware today during closing sessions of the 29th annual conference of the Northwest Ohio district of the Methodist church.

In the closing session, resolutions attacking the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill as a "flagrant denial of civil liberties," and condemnation of the growth of anti-semitism were unanimously adopted by the delegates. The resolutions, opposing any defensive or aggressive war, guaranteed church protection for conscientious objectors.

The Mansfield ministers who were reappointed are Rev. R. L. Fonlke of the Cntral Methodist church and Rev. E. G. Corwin of the First Methodist church. Rev. H. W. Peterson was again elected superintendent of the Mansfield district.

COUNTY TO HAVE 3 DRAFT OFFICES

Preparations Under Way For Registration Day Set For Oct. 15.

time a man enters his registration office until he takes a train for an army post:

In his registration office he will fill out two simple registration cards; one goes to the county and the other he keeps—and should always carry with him to prove he registered. Two unpaid workers assigned by the election board will be on duty in each precinct to assist the men.

On the morning after registration, one member of each draft board (there will be 388 in the state) will go to the election board and receive the cards of the men in his area. These will be taken back to the draft office where they will be thoroughly shuffled and counted. A number will be assigned to each card in the order of counting and that number becomes the registrant's "serial number."

The list of serial numbers and the men will be posted in a public place and published in the daily newspapers. The draft boards will telephone the number of registrants in its area to the state draft board in Columbus. Every state will report its numbers to the national board in Washington.

In Washington, numbers from one up to the highest number assigned in any one district in the nation will be placed in a bowl and drawn by lot as they were prior to conscription for World war service. The first number drawn in Washington will apply to every man having that serial number over the nation. As each serial number is drawn, the men having that number will be sent questionnaires.

Once the questionnaires are filled out, the classification begins. There are four grades of classification: 1—men available immediately; 2—service deferred because registrant is engaged in essential occupation; 3—service deferred because of dependents; and 4—service deferred by law—legislators, judges and high office holders.

Each registrant will have five days in which to fill out his questionnaire. If he is chosen, subject to various appeals, he is "in the army" from that date forward.

Out of the 16,000,000 it is expected that the first call will take one out of every 40 men, or about 400,000.

There will be one draft office in Ashland: two for Crawford county, both in Bucyrus; two in Coshocton for the city and county; and two in Huron county, both in Norwalk.

vided in the guard mobilization bill. Men and officers under the rank of captain are given 20 days in which to claim exemption because of dependents. The number of men in the battery can not drop below 60, which is maintenance strength.

Capt. Nichols said that men who had dependents and no other income other than their pay of $30 per month, probably would have to drop out of the guard, but he anticipates there will be less than 20. Recruiting will continue, he said to replace these exempted men.

Rigid physical examinations may reduce the ranks still further, as every guardsman entering upon the 12 months training period must be in first class condition. These examinations will be made soon after mobilization.

While a point of concentration has not been decided upon, it was believed likely that it would be Camp Perry or the state fairgrounds at Columbus or both, Nichols said.

Only three units of Ohio's 37th Division have been exempted from the order to mobilize. They were the 37th tank company, Port Clinton; and companies F and I at Steubenville and Mt. Vernon. Both of these are medical units and will not be needed, according to state officers.

When the war department order becomes effective next month, Adjutant General Gilson D. Light and Brigadier General Robert S. Beightler, Ohio director of highways, will be called for state service. Beightler commands the 74th brigade and Light is a major general in the regular army. Light said he would ask Gov. Bricker for a year's leave of absence from the adjutant general's post.

torized forces drove on to Sidi Barrani from Sollum, the Rome press began to assume that Egypt soon would declare war. Il Messagero said:

"From the military viewpoint, an eventual Egyptian declaration of war under pressure from Great Britain will leave Italy entirely indifferent. It will not appreciably increase the task of Italian troops."

This same paper, in a Berlin dispatch, sought to disabuse its readers of any belief that Germany has postponed the offensive against England.

"The second fortnight of September," Il Messagero said, "will not end without decisive events."

Virginio Gayda, authoritative fascist spokesman, said that Italian troops were advancing along the Mediterranean coastal road after taking Sidi Barrani.

"Italian troops are now hammering at the second line of British fortifications," he wrote in the Giornale D'Italia.

"British forces in Egypt as of August 1 totalled 110,000 men from all parts of the empire. Reinforcements have since been brought in, including 500 airplanes and 1,000 armored cars convoyed by way of the Cape of Good Hope."

BRICKER'S FRAUDULENT CLAIMS

When Martin L. Davey was Governor, he prided himself on making his public statements so accurate that none was ever challenged, not even by his severest critics.

But we have another glaring example of Bricker's careless falsehoods in his oft-repeated claim that he inherited a $5,000,000.00 deficit. As a matter of fact, Davey left him an unencumbered cash balance of $3,000,000.00 in the general revenue fund. Mr. Bricker wanted to make himself out as some kind of financial wizard, and so he invented the idea of a deficit.

Martin L. Davey

Last November, when he went down to New York to address the Ohio Society, he lugged along his alleged deficit; but when he looked at the tall buildings in New York, $5,000,000.00 did not seem very big, so he hiked the deficit promptly to $40,000,000.00.

At the first of this year, he claimed to have a surplus of two and a half million. What a superman genius he was to change a deficit of $40,000,000.00 in November to a surplus of two and a half million in January.

Mr. Bricker claims to be a lawyer. If so, he should understand the constitution and laws of Ohio. Davey is not a lawyer, but is a successful business man. He claims to understand the English language.

The constitution of Ohio prohibits any State debt, without a vote of the people, in unmistakable language, except $750,000 that must be voted by the Legislature for emergency purposes.

There was such a State debt of $750,000 when Davey first became Governor, but he paid it off at the end of the first year. There has been no such debt since that time.

The State laws on financial matters are very, very strict. No money can be spent unless it is first appropriated by the Legislature, and is in the bank. The Director of Finance must certify that the money has been appropriated and is on hand.

The State Auditor is prohibited by law from issuing checks, unless the Director of Finance certifies that the money has been appropriated, and is in the bank. If the auditor would draw one check, contrary to these stringent laws, he could be thrown out of office, and the money could be collected on his bond.

There was no State debt when Davey became Governor (except $750,000, which he paid off at the end of his first year.) There was no State debt when Davey left the Governor's office. There is no State debt now. There will be no State debt in the future, unless it is voted by the people.

Mr. Bricker shows himself to be a very poor lawyer, by his fraudulent claims about a deficit, which does not exist and cannot exist. He also shows himself to be intellectually dishonest.

Three States Vote In Primaries; Labor Tiff Watched

CONFLICT SEEN AS INDEX ON THIRD TERM

New Mexico Candidate Issues Charge of 'Intimidation,' Predicts Investigation.

(By Associated Press)

New York, Massachusetts and Wisconsin voted in primary elections today. Connecticut Republicans met in a nominating convention. And the outcome of New Mexico's ding-dong Democratic contest for nomination to the U. S. senate promised to have a sequel.

In New York, where 162 contests were listed for nominations to congress and the state legislature, much interest attached to the battle in the American Labor party between the so-called right wing which supports President Roosevelt and the left wing which opposes a third term.

Since ALP contributed 275,000 votes to Mr. Roosevelt in 1936 and 420,000 to Democratic Governor Lehman in 1938, the intra-party conflict was watched for an index of third-term sentiment.

Another aspect of the election receiving attention was the comeback attempt of John J. O'Connor, the only congressional incumbent to be defeated among the several opposed by the administration in 1938. O'Connor seeks to regain the nomination from James H. Fay, administration stalwart.

In the Massachusetts primary Senator Walsh, Democrat, and Henry Parkman, former Boston corporation counsel, Republican, were without opposition for U. S. senate nominations. Major interest centered on the Democratic gubernatorial contest between Atty. Gen. Paul A. Dever and former Lieut. Gov. Francis E. Kelly.

Voters in Wisconsin, where Senator La Follette is unopposed for the Progressive party's nomination, found the name of a dead man among the candidates for the Republican U. S. senate nomination. Dr. Glenn Frank, one of the seven entered in the contest, was killed in an auto accident Sunday night after the ballots had been printed, carrying his name.

State officials, in an informal opinion, said that if a vote plurality should be cast for Dr. Frank, the Republican state central committee would have to select a senatorial candidate.

In the Connecticut state convention of the Republican party there was a three-cornered fight for nomination to the U. S. senate. The rivals were Paul L. Cornell, preparatory school owner; former Lieutenant Governor Clifford B. Wilson, and Brigadier-General John P. Parker, of World war fame.

Out in New Mexico final unofficial tabulations in last Saturday's primary gave Sen. Chavez a small but apparently adequate lead over Rep. Dempsey for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

Attacking "political bosses," Dempsey charged that "the people have been intimidated." He announced that "30 to 40 FBI agents" would arrive in the state, agents 'who investigated and disclosed the workings of the Pendergast gang in Kansas City."

In Washington the FBI said that Dempsey had requested last week an investigation of alleged coercion and intimidation of voters. What action was taken on the request was not indicated.

START INQUIRY

Railroad Detectives Open Mail Theft Probe.

While postoffice officials awaited the arrival of federal postal inspectors in Mansfield, railroad detectives today had launched their own investigation into the theft of a mail pouch from the Union depot.

The pouch, slashed open and rifled of most of its contents, was discovered yesterday between two chicken houses on North Main street.

It was consigned to Ashland and had been trucked to the depot here to be transferred to a train. Police believe it was taken from the platform last Thursday.

Postmaster Herman E. Hornberger said today that both Pennsylvania and Erie railroad detectives had started a joint investigation, pending arrival of postal inspectors.

DRAFT FACED BY MILLIONS

American Men Between 21 and 35 Will Register Oct. 16.

Actually, those who will aid in administering the peacetime conscription act already were working at high speed against registration day and an undesignated date in November when—Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, announced last night—the first thousands of draftees would be summoned. This first group is expected to number 75,000.

Marshall's announcement obviously was predicated on the belief that congress would approve the recent presidential request for an additional $2,000,000,000 defense appropriation, largely to defray the cost of the draft.

It also places an absolute limit of 900,000 on the number of draftees in training at any one time, and that means that the vast majority of those who sign registration cards will never learn the manual of arms or see the inside of a tank.

The president, in a statement issued when the proclamation was signed, said that many of these others "may serve their country best by holding their posts on the production line."

Still others, he said, would stay at home because of "individuals dependent upon them for support." Thousands more will be deferred for failure to meet physical tests.

The president called the method "fair . . . sure . . . democratic . . . the will of our people."

"Our young men," he said, "will come from the factories and the fields, the cities and the towns, to enroll their names on registration day.

"On that eventful day," he declared, "my generation will salute their generation.

"May we all renew within our hearts that conception of liberty and that way of life which we have all inherited.

"May we all strengthen our resolve to hold high the torch of freedom in this darkening world so that our children and their children may not be robbed of their rightful inheritance."

His proclamation went on to say that "we cannot remain indifferent to the philosophy of force now rampant in the world."

General Marshall in a raido address a few hours later added that the threat of military danger to this country "trembles on the verge of becoming a probability."

Erie offices will remain in the passenger car until offices in the new station, on which construction has started, are ready for occupancy.

TELLS FARMERS TO WAIT TILL AFTER SEPT. 26 TO SOW WHEAT

Richland county farmers will have a better chance of harvesting a good wheat crop next summer if they wait until after Sept. 26 to sow their wheat, County Agent George B. Ganyard said today.

Hessian fly infestation is more likely in grain sown early, the county agent explained. He added that Sept. 26 is the fly-free date in the Richland county area.

"Grain sown before that time gains enough headway in the fall to permit the adult flies to lay eggs in the stalk, resulting in heavy damage to next year's crop," Ganyard said.

The 1939 crop had a 20 per cent infestation with Hessian flies, but farmers last year were unable to sow their grain until the last week in September and the infestation this year was only two per cent, Ganyard pointed out.

Wheat sowing for the 1941 crop is expected to be well under way in the county in two weeks although a number of farmers only recently finished threshing their 1940 crop.

The county's wheat allotment under the federal AAA program is 27,778 acres, an increase of six acres over last year. Farmers participating in the federal program must keep their acreage within that limit to receive full payment from the government for reducing their acreage and improving their land.

ROOSEVELT ESCORTS BANKHEAD BODY TO ALABAMA FOR FUNERAL

ABOARD PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S SPECIAL TRAIN EN ROUTE TO JASPER, Ala.—(AP)—President Roosevelt and nearly 100 members of congress escorted the body of Speaker William B. Bankhead through Dixie today for funeral services this afternoon in the sorrowing town of Jasper, Ala.

En route with the president to honor the veteran Democratic leader were six members of his cabinet and other high officials of the Roosevelt administration.

Mr. Roosevelt's special train was preceded by another bearing the speaker's body, members of his family, 27 senators and 68 representatives who served in the house with Bankhead.

Secretary of State Hull remained in Washington because, a presidential secretary told reporters, he did not think that he and the president should both be away from the Capitol at the same time in view of conditions abroad.

Funeral services for Bankhead, who died early Sunday of a ruptured abdominal artery, will be conducted at 3:30 p. m. (EST) in the First Methodist church at Jasper, where he had been a member for many years.

The funeral train was scheduled to arrive at 11 a. m. in the town where the speaker and his brother, Sen. John H. Bankhead, opened law offices in 1900.

Dr. T. L. McDonald, pastor, will conduct the services and burial will be in Oak Hill cemetery, where Bankhead's parents are buried.

Rev. Sam Rayburn of Texas was elected to succeed him as speaker yesterday.

4 Motorists 'Play Game' Get Fines In Justice Court

Playing "follow the leader" in their automobiles cost four motorists 10 dollars and costs in Justice of the Peace R. R. Teeter's court at Ashland yesterday.

Apparently weary of following a slow truck ahead of them east of Ashland on Route 42, and unable to pass on the left side, the four motorists, lead by Henry E. Allman of Cleveland, decided that the only thing to do was to pass on the right side of the truck. Highway Patrolmen said.

They did, but a highway patrol cruiser crew was on hand to witness the "game." Patrolmen rounded up all four and brought them into Justice Teeter's court.

The motorists were Allman, Glenn M. Dilgard, Loudonville; Louis W. Henshaw, Huntington, W. Va., and Roy E. Wirth, Sterling.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1940.

Birthdate of Our Constitution

TODAY is Constitution day—the one hundred and fifty-third anniversary of the adoption of a written agreement which established the United States of America as a nation, with a government "of the people, by the people, for the people."

As a democracy, with guarantees of liberty under law, and with the rights of individuals and minority groups safeguarded by the Constitution, this young nation has progressed amazingly—in spite of handicaps of ignorance, greed, criminality, intolerance, political incompetence and other human frailties that have retarded more rapid advancement.

This year, possibly more than ever before, there should be full appreciation by the American people of their rights and privileges under their Constitution.

For, on this seventeenth day of September, 1940, what is now known as "the American way of life" is under more serious threat than it has ever been in the past, with events of the coming year less predictable than at any time within the memory of living men.

Such liberty of thought and action as is now being enjoyed by all law abiding Americans has already been withdrawn from millions of people in Europe and the fate of additional millions still hangs in the balance.

Just now, and possibly for some time to come, Great Britain is standing valiantly between the United States and the maniacal totalitarian threat to the future of American democracy. But within another year, possibly within a few weeks, the issue will have been determined as to whether or not war can be kept on the other side of the Atlantic ocean.

Long pledged to hemispheric defense and now in agreement with Canada on a unified defensive program, the United States is moving feverishly toward building up a military establishment, in equipment and manpower, sufficient to protect this country against aggression by any foreign power or combination of powers.

There is a question, however, as to whether top speed will be sufficient to meet the need—unless Great Britain is strengthened sufficiently to bear the brunt of the onslaught for a longer time than is now deemed probable.

Meanwhile, internal dangers are even more immediate than those from the outside, and the tolerance which has condoned disloyalty and subversive activities in this country may well be put aside, at least "for the duration of the war," so that assurance of patriotic Americanism shall be a requirement for enjoyment of the protection, liberties and privileges accorded under the Constitution.

As you are inclined to rather casually remember that this is Constitution day, stop for a moment to think of what has taken place in Europe since last year's Constitution day—and what could happen in this country within another year.

Car 'Failed To Take Curve'

WHEN a person of such prominence as Dr. Glenn Frank, educator, author and political adviser, meets death in an automobile crash, the occurrence attracts more than ordinary attention—more, in fact, than the mere mention that week-end traffic toll in Ohio took twenty lives.

But, as statistics are assembled at the end of the year, the death of Dr. Frank, and his 21-year-old son who was driving the car, will count only as two in the total of thousands who will have needlessly died during the year from preventable traffic accidents.

A report of the accident in which Dr. Frank and his son were killed said: "Their car failed to take a sharp curve, skidded on the gravel shoulder and turned over ten times"—they were "speeding" to a campaign engagement.

It should be noted in this connection that a car never "takes a curve" of its own accord—that "taking a curve" is a responsibility of the driver and that speed is an important element in approaching a curve. The fact that the Frank car "turned over ten times" after leaving the road clearly indicates unsafe speed at a curve.

If, by pondering over such occurrences, other motorists addicted to excessive speed can be influenced to cultivate safer driving habits, the widespread publicity accorded the tragic death of Dr. Frank and his son may have value in proving that none is immune—that YOU may be next.

Unforeseen Defense Needs

WEAKNESS of the Maginot Line and its smaller counterparts in Czechoslovakia and Rumania is that they were built for battles never fought. There was little or no preparation for the battles which actually came—battles fought in people's minds, around the council tables, between leaders who had no consideration for peace or justice or the simple aims of common people.

Without firing a shot in their defense or having any power of decision the Rumanians have lost food crops, coal, gold, copper, timber. Their vast oil resources are in the crescent of old Rumania left after Russia and Hungary got their prizes. The peasants can't eat oil, and it isn't likely they'll profit from its sale. The Axis powers take what they want in such cases without offering just compensation.

Trade, economic cooperation, free exchange of ideas in all of Europe, would have provided more assurance of peace and independence than all the border fortifications so easily lost in the last two years.

More Than Entertainment

ONLY occasionally does a motion picture get such general favorable comment as has been given "Foreign Correspondent," now being locally shown. Judged only as an entertaining picture, "Foreign Correspondent" has all of the required elements of capable production, attractive settings and melodramatic plot, plus a background of international intrigue leading up to the present European war, and a "Keep the lights burning in America" climax radioed from the midst of a London black-out.

While "Foreign Correspondent" gives little idea of how a foreign correspondent works it does sound a warning against spies and espionage groups that may give the picture a mission above mere entertainment.

Rain kept many Maine voters away from the polls—probably including some who are good citizens in fair weather.

HITLER BRINGS CIVILIZATION TO LONDON

Listen, World!

Boost To Soul . . . Or Heel on Neck?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

YOU'VE gotta hand that fellow Hitler something. He certainly knows how to get things done in jig-time. Look at the way he's raced ahead in the last few years, building a war machine out of nothing, you might say. Yet we, with all our billions can't even get started on our preparedness program!"

You hear many people saying such things these days. They'd feel outraged if you called them "fifth columnists." yet they're selling their country short, breeding doubt and confusion as surely as any German agent.

The trouble is, they're ignorant. They've no conception of the real nature of democracy, or the inevitable cost of Freedom and Equality. They rah-rah about America, but they haven't the slightest notion what she's all about. And I suspect they're in for a whale of a beating until they learn.

It's not my job to discus politics in this column, or analyse policies. But I do believe a few plain facts might help what ails a lot of us, particularly the basic facts about the U. S. A.

At present, the average American patriot knows about as much about the government of his country as he does about toe dancing. He has a hazy idea that a democracy is a happy-go-lucky sort of affair which gets things done far more simply, easily and successfully than in "those old has-been monarchies over in Europe."

S'matter of fact, the exact opposite is true. Far from being simple and easy, a democracy is the most difficult and complicated form of government that man has ever attempted. It is clumsy, it is expensive, it is wasteful in time, energy and money, it is slow and, in times of emergency, extremely difficult to manage.

A democracy is all these things because it is based on Freedom. And if you know anything harder to handle than Freedom, for either an individual or a nation, I'd like a peek at it. For free men demand the right to make up their own minds—and take all the time they want about it. Free men refuse to live regimented. They stand upon their rights. And heaven help the unfortunate guy who tries to budge 'em. Also every free man has his own idea how things should be done, and raises Cain if they aren't done that way.

No one man rules a democracy. There is a president in America, with his cabinet, senate and house of representatives. And endless commissions and committees. But there are also forty-eight states, each one with a duplicate government. And within these states there are counties with more governing bodies.

Above all, there are 130 million American citizens, each one armed to the teeth with pleas, privileges, plans and protests. Particularly protests, for free men, due to their very liberty, are more proud and pesky than any other breed.

So what? So Hitler gets things done quick! And we don't. But that's inevitable. Hitler gets things done because there's just one person to consult, and that's Hitler. The Germans can yawp their heads off if they want, and what'll it buy them? Exactly nothing. Or a concentration camp.

One hears much about "Hitler's genius." But it doesn't require much genius to get your own way if you've no scruples about anyone else's rights, or consideration for their feelings. Many a hysterical wife or bullying husband displays the same order of "genius." After a siege of their tantrums and pouts, the rest of the family will usually do anything for peace.

Yes, tyranny gets things done in jig time. And democracy doesn't. Yet democracy has something which Herr Hitler can never achieve with all his blitzkriegs.

A man means something here. He may be poor, obscure, lazy and dumb, but the spark which God breathed into his weak clay is recognized and respected. And I'm thinking it takes far greater efficiency to boost the human soul than it does to put a spurred heel on the human neck.

Timely Editorial

Major Cause Of Car Deaths.

While another national story of life saving on the streets is being told in Kansas City we still have the old threat from the drinking driver. Since the beginning of the safety campaign nearly two years ago the police records show evidence of alcohol in about half the fatal accidents.

There is nothing new about it. Liquor was involved in many fatal accidents back in the prohibition era and it has been showing up ever since. Although old records are unreliable it seems likely that the annual toll involving liquor has decreased somewhat since the beginning of the safety campaign.

Everyone knows that it is bad business to be carrying a few drinks if he is involved in any kind of an accident or traffic violation. The courts are likely to be unsympathetic. And the knowledge of this enforcement, no doubt, has been responsible for reducing the number of liquor-motor car deaths.

Health And Diet

Several Questions Answered Here.

—By DR. CLENDENING

HOW does cottage cheese compare to lean meat in protein content and nutritional value?

Cottage cheese contains 20 per cent of protein, 1 per cent of fat and 4 per cent of carbohydrate. Its nutritional or caloric value is 112 calories per 100 grams.

Porterhouse steak has 22 per cent of protein, 20 per cent fat and no carbohydrate. Its nutritional value is 280 calories per 100 grams.

The higher caloric value of steak is due to the higher fat content.

For many purposes cottage cheese is better than lean meat. Its protein is in easily digested form—casein. The solid part is almost pure protein, with little fat or carbohydrate.

Cold Shots.

Should I take shots for colds starting in September? Had colds all last winter. I had a friend who said she had just as bad colds after taking them.

There is no agreement among doctors about an answer to this question. My experience has been like your friend's—I have yet to see the patient I thought was benefitted. Dr. Diehl, in a large university clinic, found that with a group of students to whom he gave injections of sterile water they reported just as good or slightly better results than a group who had vaccines. We don't know what germ causes colds, so how can we prepare a vaccine?

Aluminum Oxide.

When carbonated water or ginger ale comes in contact with aluminum a gray coating forms on the metal. Is this dangerous?"

Aluminum metal exposed to any moisture becomes coated with aluminum oxide. This coating is gray. It is insoluble and resists any further chemical change; it projects the aluminum from further oxidation.

Carbonate waters or ginger ale will causes this formation quite readily but the aluminum oxide is insoluble in the beverage so cannot do any harm. When small amounts of soluble aluminum salts are ingested with food or drink the metal is converted into an insoluble phosphate and not absorbed in the intestinal tract. It is therefore without physiological effect.

This "gray coating" has been used by anti-aluminum-cooking-utensil cranks to scare the daylights out of housewives. Like all their pronouncements, it is based on ignorance and bunkum.

Conflict Over Munition Plants; Government Sees Future Needs

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—There was a fiery debate inside the National Defense Commission regarding the right of the government to control munitions factories built with the help of federal tax concessions. It indicated that there is going to be more and more conflict between the government and the big business dollar-a-year men on the Defense Commission.

It all happened at a confidential session at which the commission and Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau were discussing taxes on munitions plants. Morgenthau contended that if the government was to give airplane and munitions manufacturers hundreds of thousands of dollars in tax benefits (quick amortization of new plants), then the government should have some say regarding future disposition of those plants.

Behind this was the fact that the United States today faces a drastic shortage of vital necessities such as powder, all because it permitted private industry to tear down emergency munitions plants after the first World war. So the government now wants the right to say whether new munitions plants, built through government aid, shall be demolished after the emergency or preserved against future emergencies.

Secretary Morgenthau wanted the secretaries of war and navy to be empowered to decide whether factories built under tax concessions should be preserved for the future—with reimbursements, of course, to the private owner.

S-sh!! Military Secrets!

BUT MEMBERS of the Defense Commission, led by John Biggers, head of Toledo's Libby-Owens-Ford glass company, objected. He said that this was too severe on private industry, that if Morgenthau insisted on the provision, private industry would not co-operate; the national defense program would become bogged down.

"All right," replied Morgenthau, who was anxious not to have an open break with the Defense Commission, "we'll take out the provision if you'll specify that the National Defense Commission shall be consulted regarding future disposition of the plants. Also provided that these munitions contracts be made public."

"Oh no," argued Biggers. "The contracts can't be made public. They're military secrets."

"Baloney," countered the secretary of the treasury. "There are no more military secrets in the financial part of those contracts than there are in my eye.

"Furthermore," he continued, "you on the Defense Commission will find that it is far better to let the public in on the facts now, rather than wait for future congressional committees to pry into your work—as they are sure to do. The public ought to know exactly how much the government is paying for these new plants in tax concessions, and also in outright grants—and they ought to know it immediately."

In the end the Defense Commission agreed with Morgenthau on the question of publicity. However, it disagreed with him on the right of the war or navy departments to say whether a private manufacturer should tear down or convert his plant if he secured tax benefits. And the tax bill as reported to the senate provides for only the scantiest safeguards regarding the future of these new munitions plants.

Note—How serious is the present position of the United States is illustrated by the explosion of the New Jersey powder factory, a serious disaster to defense plans. Powder factories were torn down after the World war, so now the nation has a powder capacity of only 20,000,000 pounds instead of a needed capacity of at least half a billion pounds.

Hoover's Picture.

AN UNREPORTED incident during Republican National Chairman Joe Martin's recent visit to San Francisco throws an interesting light on Herbert Hoover's political rating—at least in the opinion of some California Republicans.

The ex-president was not on Martin's list of conferences during the several hours he spent in San Francisco. But when Joe got to his hotel he learned that Hoover also was stopping there. This information did not come from the local GOP leaders, but via a call from Hoover's suite.

Martin immediately called on the ex-president—a fact discovered by a free-lance newsman. Scenting a scoop, the newsman rustled up the hotel photographer and rushed with him to the Hoover suite.

The ex-president greeted them cordially and offered no objection to posing for a picture with Martin. If Martin had any objections, he kept it to himself. The two leaders were snapped sitting close together in smiling conversation.

Reporter and photographer then dashed off to the hotel's darkroom to develop their scoop, when they were interrupted by a hammering on the door.

"We want that picture!" yelled someone in the hall. "It must not get out."

"Oh, yeah?" snorted the reporter. "You try and stop it!"

Those on the outside turned out to be local Republican leaders. And so anxious were they to get the Hoover picture that they actually went to the hotel manager and insisted that he seize it. He protested that he couldn't interfere, but was informed that unless he did, Willkie would not stop at the hotel during his forthcoming visit to San Francisco.

This, apparently, carried weight and a new appeal was made to the newsman.

"All right," he replied, "I'll give you the picture—if you get a request from Martin in writing."

But brainy little Joe refused to get involved in the affair. He smilingly observed: "Mr. Willkie posed with Mr. Hoover. I don't see any reason why I shouldn't, do you?"

The local politicos had no answer to this, so the reporter kept his scoop. But it's still unpublished. He rushed it off airmail to a national weekly which is friendly to Willkie, but to date the interesting picture still is "on ice."

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — "It's like this, Son," writes the Old Professor, Kay Kyser, from the studio lots of Hollywood, where he is making another picture. "You mean well, but every time you get out of town you let your stomach run away with you.

"Take that trip you made to my old home town of Rocky Mount, N. C., last fall. You were supposed to write a review of my picture, 'That's Right, You're Wrong,' but what you wound up doing was giving your readers a pretty picture of southern cooking. I judged from your piece that while everybody else was at the theater you stayed home and made raids on the kitchen, where the ham and the fried chicken were.

"Now I know we have good cooking in all our Southern states, but, honest, you can get a decent meal, sometimes, in other sections of the country. You can even get good cooking in New York, if you are willing to look for it.

"HERE'S what I mean. When you go to Chicago you always make a b-line for Yar's, because it has a reputation for good Russian victuals. The point I wish to raise is that you waste an awfully lot of time going to Chi when you can get the same thing, and better, at the Russian Bear in N. Y. It's the same in Milwaukee, or Cincinnati, where German cooking predominates. But the Blue Ribbon tavern in Manhattan can give you all the German cooking you want, at no extra train fare.

"The finest Mexican food I ever ate was at a small dining car cafe on the outskirts of El Paso, and I pined for it for months afterward—until somebody led me into the Oxchili, in New York. The some with Italian cooking. Even Italy can't produce better Roman loafs and lasagne than any of a dozen well-known Italian restaurants just around the corner. Any corner.

"The old town doesn't do so bad on Southern cooking, either. I don't like the names of some of those 'southern' places, such as Mammy's Chicken Farm, but then I learned long ago never to judge a tune by its title, and after all it's the way it tastes that counts, and Mammy's has it. Then there's the Pick-a-Rib, only about two hops, as the crow flies, from your door. Finest barbecued ribs and oysters you ever saw. That hot sauce they pour over it is wonderful. You get all you can eat, topped off by coffee and a big piece of apple pie. All for a buck.

"HOWEVER, if you still insist on the 'works' . . . if you still aim to go whole hawg with a menu of pot likker, corn pone, biscuits, black-eyed peas, turnip greens, grits, candied yams, ham and chicken, and if you pine to eat same in an atmosphere where the stress is placed on taste, not fuss, then this is your invitation to come on up and see me some time. We'll really do it up right.

"Meanwhile, have a good time on your vacation. I don't know where you're going, but wherever it is, all I can say is I hope the meals are frequent and tasty.

"Yours between bites — Kay Kyser."

This Is Ohio

OHIO farmers derive one in every seven income dollars from poultry.

That's the report from Ohio State university which set the 1939 total at $47,646, third behind Pennsylvania and Iowa in poultry income.

Ohio leads all other states by a wide margin, however, in the number of hatcheries and sale of baby chicks.

Ohio poultrymen gathered 160,000,000 dozen eggs last year from more than 20,000,000 hens and pullets, but couldn't provide an egg a day for each Buckeye resident. About 5,000,000 dozen go to hatcheries annually.

'Humming Bird' Moth

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

AT TWILIGHT, just outside a southeast window, I passed a colony of hollyhocks. About the colorful splash of flowers I heard a humming sound. I knew a humming bird would not be out at so late an hour of evening, so I stopped to look for the cause of the sound.

Hovering near a deep-necked bloom was a hawk moth of unusual size. The rapidly moving wings kept her poised in midair as skillfully as the ruby throat she mimicked. The long antennae seemed to guide her to the center where the pollen and the nectar were to be found.

Five different flowers she visited in as many seconds. When by mistake, she returned to the first again she hardly touched the stigma until she seemed to know she had been there before.

The abdomen was decorated with concentric rings of pink, shaded into brown. The fairy covering was softer than the finest fur and more fragile than the most delicate, translucent skein of frost. A spider's web would feel crude and coarse in contrast with such a silken, powdery covering.

The oil lamp near the window threw its beams across the back and fluttering wings of this interesting creature, and upon its back myriad points of dark reflection showed, as though its upper coat were a sheen of dazzling motion. For just a portion of a second the heavy-bodied moth perched quiet on the rim of a deep pink bloom. I noticed the foremost pair of wings were almost twice the spread of those behind and the farther corners were pointed. The short, heavy body seemed out of proportion to the delicate spreading wings.

The larva is always some shade of green, with a spine slanting backward, at the posterior end. These worms are often found on tender sweet potato leaves. The moving worm is long, but when at rest, the head and anterior—segments telescope into one another, forming a rising posture, which resembles the form of the Egyptian Sphinx. From this resemblance, the creature is sometimes called "the sphinx moth."

The pupa stage is even more interesting. In the fall I have seen the contracted dark casket buried several inches in the soil, or hidden beneath damp fallen leaves.

PRESIDENT TO GET BILL ON PRISON GOODS

Ohio Congressman Advocates Legislation to Rule Out Interstate Commerce.

By EARL BERKLEY

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Important-to-Ohio legislation to prevent sale and transportation of prison-made goods in interstate commerce is expected to be in the hands of President Roosevelt shortly.

In the midst of action on precedent-shattering defense measures, the house found time last week to approve by a vote a conference report on the prison goods bill. Proponents intend to press for prompt senate concurrence

Ohioans said they are confident that the legislation had administration endorsement.

Final house action came after lively debate over a provision to exempt farm machinery and other items produced in the Buckeye state. Conferees had eliminated the provision and a number of house members wanted it restored.

Reps. John Vorys of Columbus and Robert Jones of Lima declared that approval of the conference report was a victory for Ohio farmers and labor. Similar sentiments were expressed by Rep. Clarence J. Brown of Blanchester.

"In Ohio," Jones told the house, "rejection of this conference report would be a blow to free labor as against prison labor and a blow to the farmer who would have to pay for relief of the unemployed displaced by prison labor.

"In addition, the farmers pay a higher price for the farm implements caused by the slowing down of production of private plants whose markets are displaced by prison-made goods."

"Prison labor," he added, "can not be fair competition for private labor. One cannot say 'I am a friend of free labor' and then say 'I am against this conference report so that a prison can make these particular things.' We must either protect free labor or we are not being true to the ideal of competition."

The rejected provision was proposed by Minnesotans who joined in the laughter when Vorys remarked that "this is an example of the famous 'Minnesota shift.'

Vorys declared that many farm implement plants had lost considerable business as a result of competition by prison made goods

"I know of an instance of a small farm-implement factory in Ohio," he said, "that employs 400 men, that has lost half of its business in two western states because of Minnesota prison labor competition."

"Let us save the private free market for private free labor and not condemn free Americans to the 'idle house.'"

Rep. Thomas A Jenkins of Ironton thinks the Democratic presidential campaign will be remembered for its "firsts."

"This will be the first time any man asked the people to elect him to the presidency for a third successive term," said Jenkins in a house record statement .

"This will be the first time that any candidate dictated his own nomination, although he claimed he did not want it.

"This will be the first time a presidential nominee said he would refuse to accept the nomination which he had gotten for himself unless the convention would nominate his individual choice for vice president.

"This was the first time that the wife of a sitting president addressed the convention in her husband's interest.

"And this is the first time in the history of the nation that the people openly expressed fear that if the third term president is elected they may never have another presidential election."

Willkie Formally Opens Drive

In the small city of Coffeyville, Kan., where he was once a high school teacher, Wendell Willkie formally opened his campaign for the presidency of the United States. Speaking before a large assembled audience, the Republican nominee took a vigorous stand against the present Democratic administration.

CHAPTER XX

Norman got up and stood at the fireplace beneath the portrait of her father. "Thanks for telling me about Alan, Edwina," he said, slowly.

"I haven't helped. I've confused you. I wish I could help to untangle it—and you."

"Stay out of it. There's nothing you can do. Helplessness is new to me. I've always been able to cope with problems. But not this. It's Carol and Alan—and you and I back in New York, Edwina. And I'd like to get away as soon as possible."

"I know. Back to the grind and the bright lights to forget. But you won't. Two years from tonight you'll still remember the quarry as it was tonight—the storm, the lights going out, her face and everything she said Sorry, but you will You'll kiss other girls in the meantime and tell yourself you're getting over Carol beautifully. But you won't You see, I know. It's been five years since I was eighteen and though I don't love Allan I still remember the lilacs on the campus that year and the shabby sweater he wore to school and his hands, hard from athletics, with the nails bitten down."

"I'll be over to help you with the books tomorrow."

"Fine. It's quite a job We'll dig into it. And, Norman. "

He said, "Thanks Edwina, but I'm not wearing a false face tonight. I think I'll run along."

She went outside with him and when he had gone she sat down on the velvety grass and touched it lovingly with her hands She could be alone now. She could be alone and content with her own company. After a few minutes she drew up her knees and looked at the moon as if she were waiting for the moon to answer her silent question

Throughout the morning Edwina and Norman had worked in the Burke library removing books from the tall shelves and packing them carefully Edwina, in a yellow smock and flat-heeled white shoes and socks, had dusty hands and a dusty face as she called to him across the large room Her lively chatter often brought them face to face and she could see how tired he was Probably he had not slept. His smile was telltale; he was trying to maintain the air of a young man who is a good loser.

"How did your father collect all these books, Edwina?"

"He went to New York and bought out a rich man's library. I've no idea how valuable it is But I know that there are a good many first editions. The library people here will know. Also there are some original manuscripts. Dad . . dad told me once he couldn't appreciate them but that his grandchildren would. Now a lot of grandchildren will."

"You're not sorry. . "

"Oh, no. More people should do this I hope the time will come when all people will have—not money or advantage particularly—but the opportunity to do what they want, the kind of work they like, I mean, and to see beautiful things. That's what is lacking for youth—opportunity. I sound like a social worker, don't I? But lately I've thought more about other people, the underprivileged." She paused. "We've been working for hours. Let's take time out and have a cigarette I'm not as strong as you, you know."

She came down from a stepladder and they sat on packing cases and lighted cigarettes

"You didn't sleep last night Norman . "

"Aunt Edwina. . "

"Oh, stop You don't have to stay and help after today if you'd like to put Newton behind you Everything is settled for me. The people from the museum will be out tomorrow to see what they want, the library will take the books, and Mr. Lane told me he'd probably take a lot of the furniture along with the house Some pieces I'm going to keep. And I don't have the income dad left them and Mr Lane said he'd like them to stay on at the cotage. Sam is a splendid gardener and he knows every tree and shrub on the place All I have to do is pack my clothes say good-bye to Amy and get a train There's one tonight. Why don't you get it?"

"I think you've got something there. All I have to do is pack my clothes, pay Benson say good-bye to you and catch a train."

"Aren't you going to see Carol once more before you leave?"

He shook his head 'No Last night was—plenty In the daytime, when I could see her it would be worse." He smiled "Funny, isn't it? What possible good would it do me to see her? But I want to I'd drive a hundred miles to see her walk across the street her hair blowing. The things you take for granted in other girls, their little mannerisms, become things you remember in a girl you love Carol's hair never seems to blow over her face but always back, leaving her profile clean-cut Now it's time to get back to work . "

Her eyes were calm in their understanding "I haven't finished my cigarete and you'd better get your talk of Carol out of your system before you leave You won't tell anybody else You'll get back to New York and call up people because you won't want to be alone and next week end on Long Island nobody will guess you left a part of you in Newton And in the daytime you'll be the efficient, successful young architect . "

"You were right last night You can't explain love. I want her with me where I can see her and touch her and live with her I love her That covers everything That's all any one can say about it."

She slid down from the packing case and stood very small and dusty and dishevelled beside him. "That isn't quite all, darling It—it hurts doesn't it? There's an aching emptiness All right Let's go back to work. And you're going back tonight?"

"If you won't think I'm running out on you. What time can I catch a sleeper?"

"Around ten But you'd better make a reservation."

While she went to work again on the ladder, he phoned for a reservation Then he came back and returned to his work without speaking Edwina thought: His going away reminds me of when I ran away from Alan and from the gossip You know you must go even though there are chains that still hold you . . .

When the bell rang and she saw Sam, bent and slow, crossing the hall to answer it, she turned on the ladder, laughed and asked, "Who is it, I wonder, My creditors? Let them in! I'm not afraid of them any more"

But it was Dick Fenton who came in and stood on the threshold his eyes incredulous at what they beheld After a moment he laughed and asked, 'What is it? Housecleaning?"

Norman said "Edwina, look what the train from New York brought us!"

"Train?" Dick said "Plane, my boy."

Then Edwina and Norman came down from the ladders and the three met in the center of the room.

"Our hands are dirty," Edwina said, holding out her small hands "Look! But I can't expect Sam and Mary to do a weekly dusting job on a library this size. . . ."

"I'm assistant librarian, Dick My hands are dirtier than hers."

"I think you've both lost your minds or is this an outlet for boredom?"

"Did Cornelia come with you?" Edwina asked

"No I came in too much of a hurry."

"You'll stay for luncheon won't you? I'll tell Mary to serve it on the terrace They're my only two servants this summer Meantime Norman and I will get cleaned up a bit Then we'll explain about our housecleaning "

She found Dick alone on the terrace and she thought, walking toward him, her face clean, her mouth bright, her white silk frock tailored and expensive that of all the people she knew in New York she would probably see only Norman and Dick when she was a working girl there

He grinned "A little soap and water and lipstick and a clean dress, and you're the Edwina I know. Before Norman comes tell me—or was I in a romantic mood the night you and he were together in New York. . "

"Cornelia's charming presence accounts for your romantic mood, No, Dick. Norman and I have discovered that a man and a girl can be together constantly and become only very good friends. How is Cornelia? I'll save the explanation of our tearing up the library until Norman comes. He deserves to hear your remarks."

"Cornelia is splendid She has a choice to make—the stage or me. I'm not hurrying her."

"Are you staying long? I ask that because Norman is going back tonight and I thought perhaps you could go back together. Don't try to persuade him to stay. He's had enough of our fair city."

"You sound mysterious."

"So do you What brought you flying down, or shouldn't I ask?"

He said seriously as Norman appeared, "That will come later, too, Edwina."

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.
